Edgar English Murphy of Chicago, former Purdue University football star, is being sued for $50,000 by Ethel Jean Masden, who charged a breach of promise. Just before the date he had set for their marriage, Miss Masden said, Murphy announced he had decided to devote his life to religious study and advised her to do likewise. She didn't. Murphy is now studying in a California seminary.

THANKSGIVING DAY has passed, but we shall still be thankful, especially for discoveries in science, on which our welfare depends.

Berlin scientists have created the coldest spot on earth, producing in laboratory experiments a temperature 459 degrees below zero.

Outside our atmosphere, in mysterious space separating solar systems from each other, there exists "absolute zero." On our Fahrenheit thermometers, that would be 461 degrees below zero, space without heat.

AT such a temperature the properties of matter change. Metals lose resistance to electricity and become super-conductors. A thin thread of mercury will carry enough electricity to light several hundred lamps. Helium, the gas used in our dirigibles, becomes liquid a few degrees above absolute zero. In that terrible cold molecules in matter lose their motion, which may account for their greater electric conductivity.

MOST important to science is the fact that life itself is not destroyed at that low temperature. Seeds of barley, wheat, mustard and other plants, exposed to a temperature just above absolute zero did not lose their germinating power. Consequently, life on this planet—after it cooled off, might have been started by life germs from other planets, hurled off into space, settling in our oceans, and by evolution, producing all life from microbes to men.

THAT would make it unnecessary for life to be created miraculously on all the billions of planets in space, and would save a great deal of trouble.

CONSIDER, also, that the sun's heat comes through 92,000,000 miles of ether at absolute zero, to warm our planet. The sun's rays becomes heat only when they strike the resistance of our atmosphere, just as the electric current, coming in winter over a cold copper wire, becomes heat when it strikes the resistance of the electric stove.

FIRST abstract science, then useful application. Practical men may find a way to create in metals, apart from any absolute zero temperature, conditions similar to those that absolute zero creates. That would make possible transportation of electric current without cost or loss, and solve the problem of cheap power.

Watched Remus Kill

AUBREY STEWART

Miss Stewart told the jury hearing the Remus murder trial her eye-witness version of how the ex-rum king shot and killed his wife in Eden Park, Cincinnati, Oct. 6. She told of seeing Mrs. Remus leap from the cab after her husband's car had crowded it to a stop and scurry up the road, her hands above her head, screaming for help. Remus, she said, was calm and deliberate as he fired the fatal shot. This portion of her testimony, however, was ordered stricken from the records.

QUELL BIGGEST PRISON MUTINY; 11 DEAD

By International News Service

FOLSOM PRISON, Cal. Nov. 25.—Folsom prison's "big threat," characterized by penitentiary officials as the greatest and most sanguinary attempt at a wholesale prison delivery in the history of the United States, is at an end.

At 8 o'clock this morning, little more than an hour after first peace overtures were started, all the prisoners were reported back in their cells and locked up.

The four guards held captive by the prisoners throughout the siege walked from the old cell block, apparently un-

HOW VOTING MACHINES WORK TO BE SHOWN

Confident that Pennsylvania is going to substitute voting machines for the present method of casting ballots, the Civic Club of Allegheny County is preparing to instruct citizens in the use of the devices.

The question of voting machines will come before the electorate next year in the form of a constitutional amendment authorizing their use. Even if the plan should be vetoed then, the Civic Club will not be discouraged, it was said at the organization's headquarters today. There is full expectation, it was said, that before the chidlren now attending the public schools attain their majority ballots as now known will have become a thing of the past.

Deny He Is Insane

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN, International News Service Staff Correspondent.

COURTHOUSE, CINCINNATI, Nov. 25. — A report of three alienists pertaining to the sanity of George Remus at the time he shot and killed his wife, Imogene, was presented to Judge Chester R. Shook at the trial of Remus for murder this afternoon, but was not put into the official court record because of objections entered by the defense.

Remus was not insane at the time he killed Mrs. Remus in a towering rage in Eden Park, the alienists ruled, it is understood.

The alienists, Doctors David D. Wolfstein, E. A. Baber and Charles Kieley, were appointed by the court to observe Remus and they have been doing so in court for days.

Remus has contended he was insane when the murder was committed.

"Transitory maniacal insanity," has been his defense. He contends he was sane before the crime, "transitorally insane when his mind exploded" at the moment of the killing and sane afterwards.

Mrs. Anna Ryerson, sister of Remus, broke down and sobbed hysterically on the witness stand in Criminal Court today.

"Oh! This whole thing is terrible, terrible," she moaned.

A bailiff handed her a glass of water. She stopped crying for a moment and then collapsed again, a sob resounding throughout the courtroom.

CALLES ORDERED SUM OF $100,000 BE SENT U. S. CLAIMS ARBITER

By JOHN PAGE.

[Copyright, 1927, by the Washington Herald.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—The Sun-Telegraph and associated Hearst papers today publish documents which impeach the good faith of the Mexican government in arbitrating questions at issue with the United States.

These documents refer to a sum of $100,000 which Plutarco Elias Calles, President of Mexico, ordered given to Dr. Rodrigo Octavio, Brazilian Minister of the Special Mixed Claims Commission, as "a recognition for his good services to Mexico."

This commission first convened in 1925 to arbitrate American claims against the Mexican government for life and property losses sustained by United States citizens during the revolutionary period from November 20, 1910, to May 20, 1920.

Decision Favored Mexico

A decision unfavorable to American claims for damages resulting from the assassination of 16 United States citizens was handed down seven months after the money was ordered paid to Dr. Octavio. In the meantime the Mexican press had commented on the pro-Mexican attitude of the commission.

Judge Ernest B. Perry of Lincoln, Neb., was the American member of the commission; Fernando Gonzalos Roa was the Mexican commissioner, and Dr. Rodrigo Octavio, one of Brazil's leading jurists, was selected by the Mexican and American governments in agreement to serve as the neutral commissioner or aribter.

Disclosures Today

Documents from the Mexican secret files published by the Sun-Telegraph and associated Hearst newspapers today reveal that:

President Calles ordered that $100,000 be delivered to Dr. Rodrigo Octavio, a Brazilian, who served as neutral commissioner of the Special Mixed Claims Commission, "as a recompense for his services" to Mexico.

Dr. Octavio sided with the Mexican member of the commission in handing down a decision in which Mexico was freed from all responsibility in connection with the murder of 16 Americans at Santa Isabel in 1916.

REED SON WEDS DIVORCEE OVER FAMILY PROTESTS

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 25—The marriage of the former Mrs. Nan Ross, of St. Louis, to David A. Reed, Jr., son of the senior Senior United States senator from Pennsylvania, after a turbulent courtship during which the family of young Reed attempted to forestall the union, was revealed today in a letter from Mrs. Reed to St. Louis friends, written aboard the S. S. Elisa, on which the young couple are en route to Santiago de Chile, where young Reed will be stationed as a representative of the Aluminum Ore Company.

The courtship had its inception last summer at Lambert-St. Louis flying field, where the couple met for the first time. Young Reed was an officer in the Bridgeton Aircraft Corporation and was taking instructions under David Baker, pilot for the company. Mrs. Ross visited the flying field to fly as a passenger. Mrs. Reed has a son, 6, who resides with her parents in Spartansburg, S. C.

Mrs. Ross was married when she met young Reed but, as his request, divorced her husband, Albert Ross,

CHAPTER I.

IT WAS a noisy place to work in, Ann thought. The doors of the factory office banged open, flapped like wings. Foremen of departments came and went, arguing or frowning. Droves of salesmen arrived and departed, chewing cigars. Typewriters clattered and the insistent ringing of the telephone mingled with their sound.

And down the corridors, faintly like the sound of an army of insects, came the drone of the big machine turning out cans with relentless monotony.

No, Ann thought, she could hardly blame Georgette for refusing to work in the factory, and taking the job in the insurance office instead.

"But you get four dollars a week more here, and I know to have the deciding vote, and was under the most solemn obligation to cast it impartially and according to the evidence placed before him.

In addition to the commissioners already named, who were to act in the capacity of judges, both the Mexican and American governments were represented by legal counsel headed by a lawyer of high standing called an "agent." Col. Henry W. Anderson of Richmond, Va., and Washington, D. C., and once a candidate for Governor of Virginia, was the American agent and Aquiles Elorduy was the agent for Mexico.

During the early life of the Mixed Commission thus constituted for the trial of American claims against Mexico, President Calles ordered his Treasury Department to pay $100,000 to the arbiter, Dr. Octavio, through Octavio's private secretary, Charles J. Duranger, also a Brazilian. The Calles order is published in facsimile elsewhere in The Sun-Telegraph. The text follows:

To the Citizen Secretary of the Treasury:

You will please order the Treasurer General of the Nation to issue a pay warrant for the sum of $100,000 (One hundred thousand dollars) in favor of Senor Don Carlos J. Berenger, to be delivered by him to His Excellency, Senor Don Rodrigo Octavio, as a recompense for his good services to Mexico.

"Secret Expenditures"

You will order that the expediente (papers relating to the payment) be handled without compliance with the legal requisites. The pay warrant will be charged to secret expenditures of the Department of Foreign Relations.

President Calles, as usual in such cases, ordered the pay warrant charged to "secret expenditures," and without compliance with the legal requisites. In other words, no receipt was to be demanded. On the same day he communicated with the Department of Foreign Relations, advising that he had ordered the payment made to Octavio. This communication follows:

To the Citizen Secretary of Foreign Affairs:

This date I have ordered the Citizen Secretary of the Treasury Department to see to it that a pay warrant for $100,000 (One hundred thousand dollars) be issued in favor of Senor Don Carlos J. Berenger, to be delivered by him to His Excellency, Don Rodigro Octavio, as a recompense for his valuable services as arbiter of the Mixed Claims Commission.

You will please ask the Treasurer General for the said pay warrant, which should be delivered by your department to the interested party, avoiding every evil interpretation in this affair.

Paid for Services

Calles, in this letter to the Foreign Office, made the specific statement that the money was to be paid to Octavio at a recompense for his valuable services "as arbiter of the Mixed Claims Commission." He made the significant stipulation that it was to be delivered to "the interested party" by the Foreign Office, which had direct charge of the Mexican government's defense of the claims presented before the commission by the United States.

Slaying of Americans

The Mixed Commission headed by Dr. Octavio adjourned in September, 1925, the month in which Calles ordered the money paid to Octavio, without making any material progress. It resumed its sittings early in 1926, and by the beginning of February was well into the famous Sant Isabel case.

This case arose from the assassination of 16 Americans who were re-entering Mexico to resume mining operations at the express invitation of the Mexican government, conveyed through Gen. Alvaro Obregon. Obregon at that time was the chief of military operations in northern Mexico and was soon to become President.

Speaking at a banquet in El Paso, Tex., Obregon invited Americans who had left Mexico because of the depredations committed by the rebel forces under "Pancho" Villa, to return. He said that Villa's power had been broken and Americans could resume their normal activities with safety, at least in the district over which he had control.

Obregon's Promise

Charles H. Watson, general manager of the Cusilmirichi Mining Company, of Chihuahua, and 15 other Americans accepted the invitation. They left Juarez, across the Rio Grande River from El Paso, on a train bound for the mining property which they planned to reopen. They were happy in the prospect of getting busy again after a long period of idleness, and of affording work to hundreds of needy Mexicans. There was no danger, they assured each other, for had not the Mexican government, through its qualified representative, Gen. Obregon, told them there was none?

Stripped and Murdered

Near the little station of Santa Isabel the train was stopped by a large force of Villistas. The Americans were ordered to leave the passenger coaches, and did so. Then they were stripped of their clothes and killed, while naked. Their bodies were mutilated, either before or after. Then the triumphant Villistas fled into their refuge in the hills, where they planned the raid on the American town of Columbus, which resulted in the Pershing punitive expedition.

Col. Anderson, in charge of all cases filed by Americans against Mexico for loss of life and property during the so-called revolutionary period, selected those arising from the Santa Isabel massacre as the most clean-cut and admitting of no doubt whatever of Mexico's legal and moral responsibility. He even thought the Mexican representatives on the commission might not contest the case at all. The Mexican commissioner, Fernando Gonzales Roa, had helped write the agreement or "convention" establishing the commission, and Col. Anderson thought that Roa might co-operate with Judge Perry, the American commissioner, and Dr. Octavio, the neutral and presiding commissioner, in working out a settlement which would be fair both to the American claimants and to Mexico.

Causes for Damages

Col. Anderson's hope was justified, for in the convention establishing the Special Mixed Claims Commission, it was set forth in Article II that:

"Mexico wishes that her responsibility shall not be fixed according to the generally accepted rules and principles of international law, but ex gratia feels morally bound to make full indemnification and agrees, therefore, that it will be sufficient that the alleged loss or damage in any case was sustained and was due to any of the causes enumerated in Article III hereof.

Article III stipulated that the commission should examine and decide claims for damages suffered through any of the following agencies:

1. By forces of a government de jure or de facto.
2. By revolutionary forces as a result of whose triumph governments de facto or de jure have been established, or by revolutionary forces opposed to them.
3. By forces arising from the disjunction of the forces mentioned in the next preceding paragraph up to the time when the governments de jure established itself as a result of a particular revolution.
4. By federal forces that were not disbanded.
5. By mutinies or mobs, or insurrectionary forces other than those referred to under subdivisions 2, 3 and 4 above, or by bandits, provided in any case it be established that the appropriate authorities omitted to take reasonable measures to suppress insurrectionists, mobs, or bandits, or treated them with lenity or were in fault in other particulars.

The foregoing causes for damages clearly covered almost any contingency under which an American could be killed in Mexico, whether by soldiers, rebels, mutineers, bandits, robbers or rioters. The Mexican government received much praise at the time the convention was drawn for its "splendid willingness" to go even beyond its obligations under international law and settle for damages suffered by Americans originating in any way from revolutionary disturbances. The then American Secretary of State, Charles Evans Hughes, is known to have recognized the Obregon government principally on that account.

Anderson Forecast Ruling

Colonel Anderson's surprise may be imagined, then, as he watched the development of the Mexican efforts at evasion of the provisions of the convention. His surprise grew into astonishment when he saw that the "neutral" arbiter, Dr. Octavio, was in full sympathy with the Mexican viewpoint. On February 8, 1926, ten weeks before the unfavorable decision was actually handed down, Colonel Anderson could read the hand-writing on the wall and said:

The position assumed by the Mexican government constitutes a complete denial of every obligation admitted or assumed by Mexico under the provisions of the convention establishing this commission and is in legal effect a repudiation of the convention itself.

The Mexican position is a denial and repudiation of the clear and express language of the convention. Under the terms of the convention the commission should be guided by the broad principles of equity and justice. . .

As representative of the United States I ask nothing but the rights of my government and cannot accept less.

By March 10 the Mexican agent, Aquiles Elorduy, was boasting of the coming victory in the Santa Isabel case, and Mexican newspapers were speaking of the forthcoming favorable decision in the confident light of advance knowledge.

The decision was read at a formal meeting of the Commission on April 26, 1926, and bore out the boasts of Elorduy that Mexico would win. The decision absolved Mexico from any responsibility for the assassination of the 16 Americans at Santa Isabel, and represented the combined opinions of the Mexican Commissioner, Senor Roa, and of Dr. Octavio, the neutral Commissioner. Judge Perry, the American Commissioner, entered a futile dissenting opinion, which he read to the Commission with flushed face and flashing eyes, much as his fighting ancestor, Commodore Oliver Hazard Perry, might have read it in similar circumstances.

The United States entered a formal protest against the decision, reserving the right to reopen the case at some future time. This action was taken in obedience to orders from Ambassador Sheffield, who notified the State Department after it had been done.

There is reason to believe the unfortunate experience of the American government in the arbitration of the Santa Isabel case had something to do with the decision of President Coolidge last winter not to arbitrate other pending differences with Mexico. President Calles made the offer to arbitrate them in an interview with a group of American "good will" investigators into conditions in Mexico. This body was headed by Dr. Hubert C. Herring, a Congregationalist minister, writer and lecturer. Mr. Coolidge's first reaction to the proposal seemed favorable, but after mature consideration he refused to arbitrate. This refusal was made in spite of a Senate resolution in favor of arbitrating with Mexico.

with the money, or how its use may affect America.

CHINESE business men protest against proposed American loans to the South Manchurian Railway. "That railroad," say the Chinese, "is an agency for Japanese imperialistic penetration into China, a Japanese imperialistic, political and economic instrument, NOT a commercial undertaking."

WE might feel foolish, fifty years hence, discovering that we had financed unification of Asia for Japan. Think hard.

THE American soldier had his Thanksgiving Day turkey allowance increased yesterday from one pound to one pound and three-quarters for each man, by order of President Coolidge.

The President had 100 pounds of fine turkeys sent him by friends, and probably ate three ounces, not choosing to overload his stomach.

THE ENGINEERS' CLUB in New York celebrated, with Thanksgiving, the anniversary of John Ericsson's landing in America from Denmark.

Ericsson, you remember, invented and built the Monitor, at first ridiculed as a "Cheese Box."

That cheese box destroyed the Merrimac, turning the tide of the Civil War.

If another Ericsson should come, he would be asked "have you not read our immigration laws? Don't you know we need no Europeans?"

NO war is more horrible than a religious war, as illustrated now in Mexico.

Four men, one a priest, were executed by shooting on Wednesday, following alleged confessions by all four, that they had plotted to murder Obregon, candidate for president.

THE Catholic priest, the Rev. Miguel Agustin Projuarez, died first, at his own request, setting an example of courage to the others. Asked if he had any last request, he replied: "I beg you to let me pray." He knelt, praying, with a crucifix held before him, and then, standing with his face to the firing squad, he was shot as he made the sign of the cross. A sergeant gave him the "coup de grace," sending a pistol bullet into his temple.

HOW VOTING MACHINES WORK

secretary of the Civic Club, "who have never seen ballots of the awkward cumbersome kind that we handle in our elections. They have never voted otherwise than by machines.

"Voting machines are the progressive and efficient method. They have been successful in other states. They are economical of time and money. I can't think that Pennsylvania is going to stay behind the procession.

"People remark on the cost of installing voting machines. They should give some consideration to the cost of holding elections under our present archaic system.

"As soon as the people have been shown the advantages of voting machines they will adopt them. It is simply a matter of educating the public, and that is what the Civic Club proposes to do. We believe the most effective way is to show machines to the voters, and I know of no better plan to accomplish this than to demonstrate them in the schools. The children will talk about them and get their parents interested.

"We are planning, accordingly, to demonstrate voting machines in the junior civic clubs of the city high schools. To show that they are a practical thing, we will ask the boys and girls to hold mock elections at which the voting will be done with these devices. Parent-Teachers' associations will be invited to attend."

The Civic Club went on record in favor of voting machines some years ago. Mrs. Franklin P. Iams, for 20 years chairman of the club's legislative committee, who died in 1924, was an ardent advocate of their adoption.

In 1922, at the instance of Senator William Flinn, a bill authorizing voting machines was introduced in the Pennsylvania Legislature. It was defeated by one vote in the House and did not reach the Senate. In the special session of 1925 Senator John P. Harris introduced a voting machine bill, in the form of an amendment to the Constitution, and it was passed by both House and Senate.

As the law requires that an amendment must be passed by the Legislature at two sessions in precisely the same form Senator John Harris' brother and successor, Senator Frank J. Harris, introduced the measure anew at the last session. The Senate passed it almost unanimously, and the House by a large majority. It now comes before the people.

It is expected that organizations will be formed to campaign for the measure. Emphasis will be laid on the benefits that voting machines have brought in other states by preventing fraud and expediting elections. Apropos of the last, attention is being directed to "The New York American's" comment on the general election in New York city last November, at which the mechanical devices were employed.

"The use of the machines," said that newspaper, "generally was credited with speeding up the voting, in most districts three votes being cast every two minutes."

MUTINEERS ARE QUELLED

harmed, but their faces pale and drawn from 24 hours' constant danger.

The backs of their uniforms were white and splotched, indicating that they had rolled on the whitewashed floors while scuffling with the convicts during the outbreak.

Dr. P. W. Day, Folsom prison physician, held captive since he went in yesterday to minister to the injured, came out for a minute to tell prison officials that there were 9 dead in the cell house and about 30 wounded, of whom 15 would require amputations. The revelation that nine were dead in the cell house brought the total death toll to 11, two guards having died.

All the convict dead and wounded were mowed down shortly before dusk yesterday when the army of civilians, prison guards, police and sheriff's deputies swept the cell house with rifle fire in retaliation for the shooting of Barnett Huse, secretary to the warden, who was wounded in the leg.

The four guards released today after about 24 hours' captivity are Emory L. Campbell, Bob McCreary, Charles Bengler and Lawrence Purcell. None was injured.

Upon their release, the four men went into conference with Warden Smith and prison and state officials, who are preparing to launch their investigation into the circumstances leading up to the bloody warfare.

In addition to the eight convicts reported killed by Dr. Day and the 30 wounded prisoners, the big prison break cost the lives of Ray Singleton, tankey, shot down when the outbreak started, and Charles Glass, oldest guard at the penitentiary, who died of heart failure during the excitement of the attack.

One of the contributing causes to the early truce was a threat sent in over the telephone to the convicts that the water in the cell house would be turned off.

Surrender of the 1,000 mutinous prisoners came just as the troops and guards outside were drawn up prepared to attack.

The warden said the convict who acted as spokesman stated that the terms of their surrender were that they "not be beaten, abused or starved."

Warden Smith sent back word that the leaders in the attempted break would be placed in solitary confinement with one meal a day.

Conclusive evidence that the most sensational break in Folsom's history has ended came when the National Guardsmen marched to the prison arsenal and turned in their ammunition.

Two army tanks, their noses pointed toward the south gate, and bristling with machine guns, were ready to lead the attack when the surrenderwa s announced.

REED'S SON IS WEDDED

a public accountant, shesays. According to friends of the couple, young Reed wanted to marry immediately, but Mrs. Ross insisted Reed's family be consulted first.

On invitation from his son, Senator Reed visited St. Louis and became a familiar figure at the flying field, appearing there with his son and the latter's fiancee.

At that time Mrs. Ross said it appeared the parental blessing would be forthcoming, but immediately after Senator Reed returned to Pittsburgh he telephoned his son to return East immediately.

When the son arrived in Pittsburgh, Mrs. Ross said, his father used every means at his disposal to influence his son against the marriage. The elder Mrs. Reed at that time was in Europe and an effort was made to have young Reed go to Europe ad return with his mother.

Under pressure from his father, Mrs. Ross said, he agreed to the plan provided he could return to St. Louis and marry after his return from Europe. On the way to the station in Pittsburgh, she said, her fiance changed his mind at the last minute and with the aid of his sister exchanged his ticket to New York for one to St. Louis and returned to Mrs. Ross.

Upon his return to St. Louis young Reed said his action severed all connections with his family, according to Mr. Ross. He told Mrs. Ross Senator Reed informed him insurance policies under which he was beneficiary would be altered to exclude him, and his income from the family would be discontinued.

'AROUND-WORLD' WADE URGES AIRPORT

Pittsburgh's plan for a large municipal airport marks a portentious development in the aviation industry, in the opinion of Leigh Wade, round-the-world flier, here today to speak at a meeting of the Westinghouse Club.

Lieut. Wade, who resigned from the United States Army after completion of the famous globe-circling flight, was met at Union station by W. R. Marshall, Pittsburgh manager of sales for the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company; F. N. Marclay, manager of the Westinghouse Club, and R. C. Edgar of the publicity department of the company. Later he attended a luncheon in his honor at the Chamber of Commerce and tonight will speak at the Westinghouse Club, Wilkinsburg.

MRS. HAROLD LLOYD

This orchid brought Mrs. Harold Lloyd, wife of the movie comedian, a check for $500. It took first prize at the Beverly Hills and Pasadena flower shows. Experts call it a "cypripedium maxusion" and know it as one of the rarest flowers.

3 KILLED IN OHIO ROW

SLAIN IN DIVORCE FIGHT

POINESVILLE, O., Nov. 25.—(AP.)—Peter McCrory, 47; Fred Cook, 29, and Alex Cook, 26, are dead and Arthur McCrory, 19, son of Peter McCrory, is in a hospital with a bullet wound in the arm as a result of a shooting affray here today, said by authorities to have been the outgrowth of domestic difficulties involving the elder McCrory.

Police declared Peter McCrory turned a revolver on the two Cooks, his step-sons, when they interfered after he had gone to his estranged wife's home and demanded that she talk to him. Both were killed instantly.

Arthur McCrory next sought to dissuade his father and received a bullet in the arm.

The elder McCrory, the police declared, then shot himself in the head, dying instantly.

The shooting occurred in the presence of Mrs. McCrory, who ran from the room as a bullet shattered her glasses and inflicted a superficial wound on her nose. She was taken to the hospital for minor treatment.

A divorce action which she filed recently was declared to have precipitated the shooting.

"Beware Frenchmen" Local Divorcee Warns

By ALICE LANGELIER.
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

PARIS, Nov. 25.—"Don't marry a Frenchman if you want to be happy," was the advice broadcast to American girls today by one who has tried it. She is Baronne Reinach de Werth, formerly Miss Helen R. Tennyson, of Pittsburgh, Pa., and Washington, D. C.

Miss Tennyson was divorced from the baron, remarried him and then obtained a legal separation in New York. She is in France now trying to obtain the custody of her child, which was awarded to her by the American courts.

Baron de Werth, member of a rich and aristocratic French banking family, has filed suit for divorce in the Rota Tribunal of the Vatican. Miss Tennyson will not contest the action.

The couple met while the baron was in Washington with the Tardieu Mission in 1918. Miss Tennyson was doing war work in Washington at the time.

"A Frenchman is a wonderful lover," Miss Tennyson conceded. "There is no doubt about that. But a woman gets fed up with love-making. She doesn't want it all the time. My husband was determined to get revenge when I told him I would not be one among many others. I wanted to be the 'one and only.' He began by taking back everything he had ever given me. Now he is trying to get my child. No, do not marry a Frenchman if you want to be happy.

3 CONVICTS GET AWAY, LED BY 'OLD-TIMER'

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., Nov. 25.—Liberated by an old prisoner's cunning, acquired through years of penal servitude, three escaped inmates of the Marshall county jail were being sought today.

Led by James Manley, 60, who served 25 years in an Ohio prison, and who was held for trial on a liquor charge, the trio, taking advantage of Thanksgiving Day liberties, sawed heavy iron bars from a second-story window and leaped to the ground.

Besides Manley, the fugitives are Ford Stern, 20, held for numerous robberies, and Charles Brown, 35, alleged thief.

This year the works for the Toy Mission have their headquarters in the Old South School, Ross and Diamond streets.

Toy Mission Opens

Beginning the thirty-fourth year of its service to the children of Pittsburgh's needy families, the Toy Mission today opened holiday headquarters in the Old South School Building, Ross and Diamond streets. Here it is expected that 100,000 toys will be collected within the next four weeks and will be distributed among more than 18,000 boys and girls who otherwise have few gifts to cheer their Christmas season.

When Manager George L. Bond swung the big canvas sign above the schoolhouse door Pittsburgh saw the first and surest sign of the approaching Yuletide. For a third of a century the annual resumption of the Toy Mission's activities has put the Christmas spirit into the atmosphere and turned Pittsburghers' thoughts to good deeds. Straightway when the sign went up came offers of toys with which to fill the stockings of the little folks who are to be remembered in this year's distribution of books and playthings.

In the historic building of the Old South School the Toy Mission workers go back near the place where their undertakings started in a humble way but with buoyant spirits in 1894. Mr. Bond recalled the Mission's beginnings:

"It was right across the street there in the old Fourth Avenue Baptist Church at a Wednesday night prayer-meeting in December, 1894. Maj. R. W. A. Simmons, my

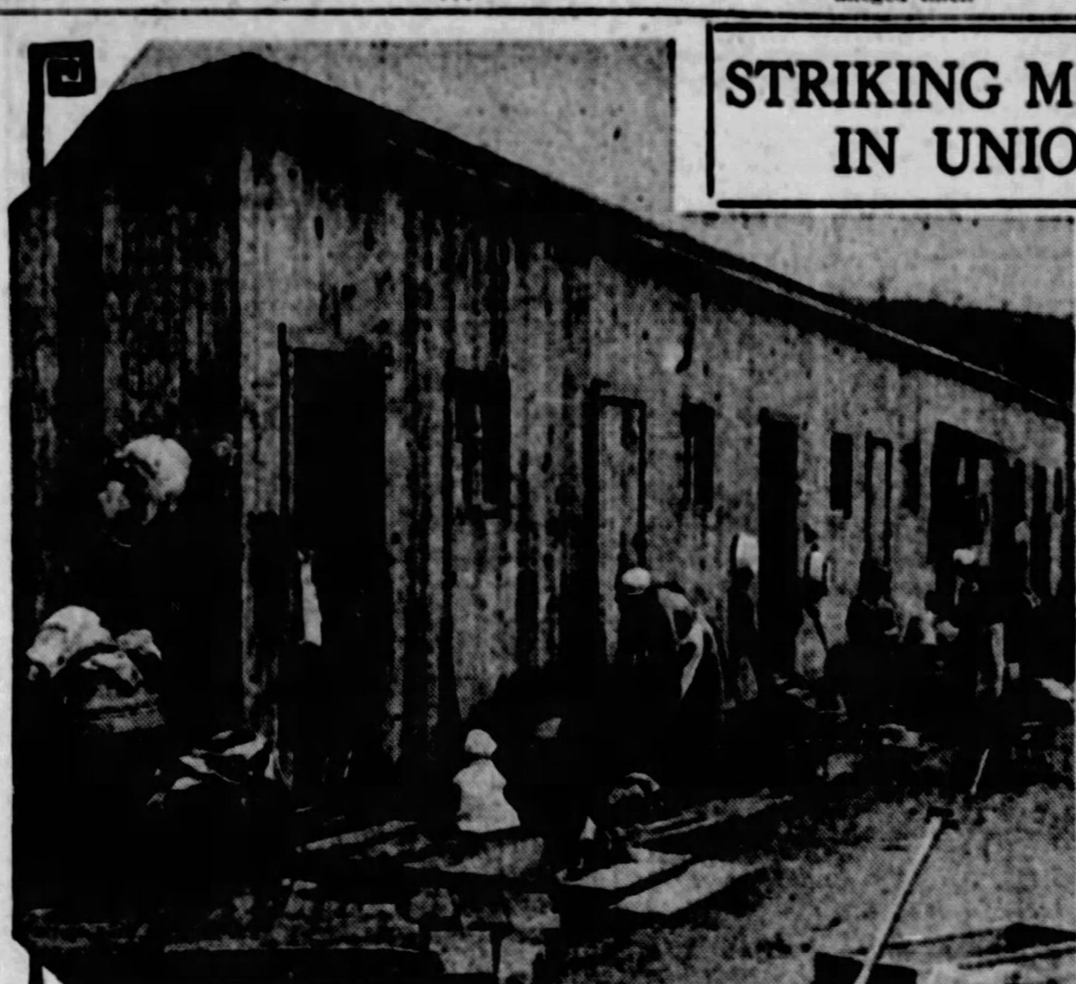
ROB HOMEWOOD STORES

Jewelry valued at $2,000 was reported stolen from the store of Harry M. Marks, 7640 Fulton avenue, last night. From the Marks' basement the thieves entered the cleaning establishment of Morris Singer, 7642 Frankstown avenue, and stole a dress.

Dresses and suits were stolen from the Tioga Cleaning and Dyeing Company plant, 7209 Tioga street.

Provisions were stolen from the meat market of Henry Newman, 1306 Colwell street, and from a chain grocery at 2173 Wylie avenue.

STRIKING MINERS LIVING NICELY IN UNION-OWNED HOMES



HOUSES SEVEN FAMILIES

Seven families live in the building shown above. It is one of the barracks built for striking union miners and their families at Russelton by the United Mine Workers' organization when they were evicted from company houses. The miners have been living in their new homes for about a month and apparently are able to make the best of things. The above picture was taken on wash day and shows several families busy at the wash tubs.

THEIR EFFORTS HELP SUFFERERS

AID MANCHESTER VICTIMS

The Adler basketball team, in a benefit game, raised $175 which was turned over to the Sun-Telegraph for sufferers in the Manchester gas explosion. Among those who took part in the benefit were (standing): Capt. Riter and Players Saul Kaufman and Herbert Lewis and (seated) M. S. Steinsapir, advisor to the team, and S. H. Adler, backer.

Blast Fund Nets $175 By Basketball Game

A benefit basketball game between the S. H. Adlers and the John H. Irwins, in the gymnasium of the Taylor Allderdice High School, last Tuesday night, for the victims of the North Side gas explosion netted $175. A check for this amount has been turned over to the Sun-Telegraph for the Red Cross fund by M. S. Steinsapir, advisor who promoted the game.

Tickets were distributed to 22 members of the Adlers team and 700 were sold. The Adlers defeated the Irwins, 31 to 12.

Following is a list of those who sold the tickets: Merle Little, Bernard Childs, Saul Mebron, Sidney Mann, Marty Riter, Leonard Silverblatt, David Frank, Leonard Levi, Bernard Silverblatt, Ben Jaffe, Edward Baker, Dan Stiner, Martin Klinkenstein, Milton Green, Harold Orringer, Mose Olbum, Milton Smith, Saul Kaufman, David Levine, Herbert Lewis, Sidney Kirby, Phil Peery and Mascot Oscar Schutzman.

Cats in Gas Blast Did Not Desert Their Homes

Six cats rescued from the ruins of homes demolished by the Equitable Gas Company tank explosion on the North Side are being cared for by the Animal Rescue League until the owners reclaim them. Almost immediately after the explosion the league's agents were on the scene searching for pets, and the search has been continued daily since. Most of the dogs belonging in the wrecked houses strayed to other homes, but the cats stayed.

CRASH OF CARS HURTS THREE

In a crash of autos in Brighton road, at Westborn street, late last night, Harry Wickline, 51, of 2227 Hazelton street, his wife and his daughter, Ruth, 6, were cut and bruised on the head when their car overturned. J. W. Pyle, 58, of 106 North Freemont street, Bellevue, driver of the other auto, and Wickline were charged with reckless driving.

TOY MISSION RENEWS LABORS

longtime friend and business associate, came in and asked those in the church if they had any neglected toys in their attics. He said he had found some children in Strawberry alley who knew nothing about Christmas and had never possessed a toy. We all brought toys and on Christmas eve we distributed them among 25 children Maj. Simmons had found in the alley. In the following year the same good turn was performed and we distributed our gifts to 200 children.

"We were now the Toy Mission. In our first toy distribution we gave them to children of all creeds and regardless of color and our work as the Mission has been carried on with the same broad spirit. In 1896 we gave toys to 1,600 children and the cordial co-operation of the public encouraged us to very greatly extend our work."

Maj. Simmons left Pittsburgh in 1905 and since that time Mr. Bond has directed the Mission's activities. Through all the years he has been surrounded by willing and loyal workers, who have continued their efforts through all seasons in preparing for the big annual fete day of free toys for poor children. Mrs. John E. Potter, "doll-physician" at the Mission, is never idle and in the days following Christmas prepares for the following year's distribution, gathering in thousands of "sick and injured" dolls which are "cured" and given to her friends to be dressed for their new owners.

John E. Potter works night after night at the Mission as book censor and in assorting books for children of various ages. A. C. Houston is an expert mender of toys and each year sets up his shop where he finds pleasure in the handicraft which brings happiness to so many of the Mission's boys and girls. Mrs. Houston superintends the dressing of the dolls and sends thousands to women's clubs and other organizations whose members provide dainty gowns, cloaks and doll millinery.

"This will be one of our biggest seasons," said Mr. Bond, "but with all the work we have to do we shall not be at a loss for helpers. We expect to have nearly 20,000 children to supply and more and more gifts of toys will be required."

killed, because he was working on the tank when it blew up."

The coroner today issued a statement relative to the valves controlling gas entering the tank. It follows:

"In view of what occurred at the Reedsdale street plant of the Equitable Gas Company, it is an admitted fact that an explosive mixture was present in the gas holder under repairs.

"No investigation would be complete without an effort to determine, if possible, how this explosive mixture entered the holder.

"The valves controlling the entrance of gas into the gas holder which exploded have been examined on the ground and as to whether they were closed or open is known by state, county and other officials.

"Considering the conditions that existed at time of explosion it was the opinion of all concerned in the investigation that valves found closed should be put through a test in which conditions existing at time of explosion would be duplicated in an effort to determine if gas would fuse through valves when closed.

"This test will take some time and as information obtained from results of these tests will be of vital importance for the coroner's inquest, same will not be held until tests are completed, which will take about three weeks' time from this date."

RICHMAN'S CLOTHES

Men think of Richman's Clothes, quite naturally, when they see the price mark this name made famous. And yet, they think and talk of Richman's Clothes in terms of style, woolen value, and tailoring quality. They no longer measure Richman value by the price—but they appreciate the opportunity the price affords for dressing better without spending more.

Your choice of any Richman suit, overcoat, or tuxedo suit, at one standard price.

All $22.50

A new thought in clothes buying has been taking hold rapidly. Men who used to pay $50, or more, for a single suit are buying two or more Richman suits at a time—they change more often, and are better dressed—they save on their yearly clothes budgets. It's a good plan in buying overcoats, too. A warm, rugged box overcoat, ulster or Raglan, in a lovely colorful weave for the daily business grind — then a change for evening or dress occasions to a rich blue or gray Melton, with velvet collar. You can buy both for the price you thought of paying for one.

Extra Trousers—$3, $4, $5 and $6

CHARITIES GIVEN AID IN WILLS FILED HERE

Charities benefit from two estates in which wills were filed this morning.

From his $15,500 estate, Joseph Unger, Jenny Lind street, McKeesport, directs payment of the following bequests: McKeesport Hospital, $300; Jewish Home for Babies, $500; library and $500 to Gusky Orphange; $500 to Jewish Home for Aged; $500 to Kraus-Kopf Farm School, Doylestown; $500 to Rodeph Shalom congregation. The remainder of the estate goes to his widow.

Stella Flannery Coyle, 4724 Bayard street, set aside $500 each for St. Paul's Orphanage, Ladies' Aid of St. Paul's Cathedral, Little Sisters of the Poor, DePaul Institute, St. Joseph Protectory and St. Paul's Cathedral. Josephine Motyl is willed $2,000 and the balance of the estate, which is said to be quite large, is left to her husband, and children by a former marriage, Mrs. Harriet Lawson, Victor O. Friday, Jacques J. Friday and Walter F. Friday.

Conrad Reutzel, Shaler township, left a $60,000 estate to his widow, Elizabeth Reutzel, and their two sons, Walter and Harold C. Reutzel.

Bear That Bites Benefactress Banned

By Universal Service

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—"Br'er Bear, don't let the sun set on your head in this town."

Tempering justice with mercy because of the day, Police Court Judge Mattingly passed that sentence upon a young grizzly bear. He had bitten the hand that fed him.

A woman shopper stopped by the "covered wagon" in which two war veterans—Charles Keohane, Fort Worth, Tex., and V. P. Taylor of Australia—were touring the country selling postcards. As she extended a contribution, the bear nipped her hand.

The men and the bear were arrested after an exciting chase, but the Judge released them. The bear did not testify.

Mary A. Millar, Amboy street, left her $13,000 estate to three children, W. N. and B. D. Millar, and Sylvia M. Magill.

OIL CITY AIRPORT SITE IS APPROVED

OIL CITY, Pa., Nov. 25.—The airway division, Department of Commerce, has approved the Oil City airport site. The field is 2,200 feet long and 1,400 feet wide and will need runways only for the very largest ships.

ARREST JUSTICE AT HYNDMAN

Arthur B. Jenkins, justice of the peace at Hyndman, Bedford county, was arrested by Deputy United States Marshal D. A. Goldman on a charge of violating the provision of the World War Veterans' act, by making alleged false certificates and statements to the Veterans' Bureau in applications for the $100 burial expenses allowed by the government to families of deceased soldiers.

In the alleged irregularities he is charged, in an indictment, with intent to defraud the government. Fifteen such claims were made and in some instances unknown to the families of the deceased until they received the reimbursement from the government on which Jenkins was said to have received commissions.

Jenkins, who is a veteran of the Spanish-American War and in ill health, was released on his own recognizance pending trial in the Federal District Court.

A Raw, Sore Throat

eases quickly when you apply a little Musterole. It penetrates to the sore spot with a gentle tingle, loosens the congestion and draws out the soreness and pain and won't blister like the old-fashioned mustard plaster.

Musterole is a clean, white ointment made with oil of mustard. Brings quick relief from sore throat, bronchitis, tonsilitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, headache, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet, colds on the chest.

To Mothers: Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

WINTERS LEADS IN VOTE FOR COUNCIL

Complete figures for the councilmanic fight at the general election, as announced by the returning board, give Daniel Winters, president of council, a vote of 105,387, or almost 5,000 votes more than his nearest running mate, Robert G. Alderdice. Mr. Alderdice was given 100,794; Charles G. Anderson, 100,010, and Robert Garland 99,247. The returning board will resume its work after being idle over Thanksgiving.

The board begun its work two weeks ago and up to date has completed the count in the cities and in the boroughs in alphabetical order to Overbrook. Wednesday the election board of the First District of East McKeesport was brought into court to explain a missing return sheet, which later was found in the ballot box.

Richard W. Martin leads the candidates for judges, having a vote of 105,755 on the Republican ticket, 2,016 on the Prohibition ticket and 41 votes on the non-partisan ticket. Complete figures for the other judges were: Republican, Judge Joseph M. Swearingen, 103,746; Frank P. Patterson, 103,492; Judge James Gray, 102,440; Judge Josiah Cohen, 101,519; Judge Thomas J. Ford, 99,884; Judge Thomas D. Carnahan, 98,686; Elder W. Marshall, 95,425, and Judge George V. Moore, 97,237. The Prohibition ticket gave Judge Moore 1,672 and Judge Gray 1,852 and the non-partisan ticket gives Moore 34 and Gray 19.

NEW FORDS TO BE OUT IN WEEK

By RAY PRIEST,
Universal Service Automobile Editor.

DETROIT, Nov. 25.—Henry Ford announces that he will show his new car to the public for the first time on next Friday, December 2.

New cars are being built in steadily increasing quantities at the plants in Detroit, Louisville, St. Louis, Los Angeles, Green Island (N. Y.) and Chicago.

Shortly after the first of the year all 33 full assembly plants in the United States will be going on full schedules which, it is expected, will bring production up to 12,000 cars per day. This total will be approximately 4,000 daily more than Ford ever built before.

According to a statement by Henry Ford, his new car will be responsible for expenditure of nearly $900,000,000 for labor and materials during 1928. Several nationally known statisticians, including Col. Ayres, Cleveland banker, have said that Ford's shutdown of the last six months was one of the five or six factors responsible for business restraint prevalent throughout the country.

With the opening up of the Ford plants, Col. Ayres predicted that there would be a loosening of pursestrings everywhere and better business conditions.

HUBBY JEALOUS OF GAS MAN

"Was the huckster or baker here and did you love him?"

That was a question Mrs. Grace I. Smith, 27, of 809 Tenth avenue, Munhall, had to answer daily, she testified in her divorce suit against her husband, Lester W. Smith, before Judge Thomas J. Ford in Common Pleas Court.

While the gas man read the meter, Mrs. Smith had to stay on the porch, she also averred.

"Swear by your dead mother that you spoke to no other man while you were out," also was demanded frequently, Mrs. Smith said.

WARFARE FLARES AS RUMANIA "STRONG MAN" DIES

Carol Not to Attempt Immediate Coupe

BUCHAREST, RUMANIA, Nov. 25.—(AP.)—A special dispatch to the newspaper Dimineata today says that chaos and anarchy are reigning in the Ukraine with hundreds killed in street fighting.

The dispatch says that hundreds of civilians and soldiers were killed in fierce street fighting in the town of Kamenetz-Podolsk.

The firing of cannon could be heard all along the Dniester River, the dispatch said, while a meeting at Kishineff of the Rumanian-Russian mixed commission was canceled because of the disturbances.

FACTIONS IN TRUCE

By International News Service.

BUCHAREST, Nov. 25.—Although a tense political situation has followed the death of Premier Jan Bratianu, "Rumania's strong man," Bucharest and the kingdom were quiet today.

A truce has been effected for the time being between the National-Peasant opposition groups and the Bratianu forces in control of the government.

Premier pro-tem Vintila Bratinu, brother of the former premier, is temporarily in charge of the government. It is expected that a coalition cabinet will be formed soon.

M. Haniu, leader of the Peasant party, is conferring with his colleagues upon the advisability of entering the new cabinet.

The new ministry has issued a proclamation threatening severe penalties upon any one attempting to conspire against the state or plotting disorders.

M. Bratinu's body has been placed in the national athenaeum. It will lie in state until the funeral on Sunday. Large numbers of persons passed before the bier throughout the day.

A military guard watched the casket.

PARIS, Nov. 25.—"Premier Bratianu's death does not mean my immediate return to Rumania," former Crown Prince Carol told International News Service today. "You can see that I am not making any hurried preparations for returning to Bucharest, as you may have thought.

"I must still await further events in Rumania. The morning press says that the Peasants party have sent me an invitation to return at once. I have not seen any such invitation."

POSTMASTER DISAPPEARS, BEGIN CHECK ON ACCOUNTS

WESTERNPORT, Md., Nov. 25.—Coincident with the disappearance of Earl Dowling, postmaster here, post-office inspectors began an investigation of the accounts of the office. They refused to discuss an alleged shortage, but the Postoffice Department has asked for a recommendation for a suitable person to serve as acting postmaster.

For Thanksgiving night Carnegie Music Hall became a Spanish cabaret. Doris Niles and her dancers under management of James Bertz, gave us a taste of Paris and of Madrid such as Pittsburgh has rarely enjoyed; there was an entente between the performers and the audience that exhilarated the dancers to marvelous abandon. They tossed flowers to the admiring public and gave several extras, a czardas, a pas-de-trois, and a pretty rose-waltz, in return for the enthusiastic applause.

The Carnegie Hall stage became for the first time a practical platform for dancing. The black velvet curtain was a perfect background for the colorful costumes; there were no further trappings to detract our attention from the actors. Miss Doris has studied well; even greater than her fundamental dance technique is her poetic and forceful imagination which she translates into truthful pantomime and folk pictures.

The killing of eight bulls in the arena at St. Sebastian is still fresh in my mind; I can assure you that this dancer gave us last evening a most authentic picture of the matador, and recreated a Spanish afternoon like no actor has done for us. A full program of monotonous Spanish tunes and rhythms can become wearisome, but Miss Niles is a good director as well, and varied the program with several groups of light songs.

Gil Valeriano could not be called a legitimate tenor, but he is a good Spanish singer. We may consider his ingenious use of falsetto overworked, but that is the music of Spain and was strictly in order. I can not imagine why he introduced the American song unless it was reminiscent of a tourist in Granada.

Cornelia Niles is quite as gifted as her sister; her art is gentler, more insinuating. Ruth Flinn, Nina Polsley and Sophia Delza danced several attractive ensemble numbers and with the two principals succeeded in bringing a real spirit of drollery into the entertainment. Louis Horst directed the small orchestra and played the tenor's accompaniments. I should be willing to desert another Thanksgiving table to see these dancers next year.

LEWIN-NEIMAN CO., 303-309 SMITHFIELD ST.—JUST ACROSS FROM POSTOFFICE

36 BUFFALO TO BE SHIPPED TO COUNTY PARKS

Plans for transporting a herd of 36 buffalo from the wild game preserve of Gen. Harry C. Trexler, Schnecksville, about 20 miles east of Allentown, to the county's two public parks, the North park, McCandless township, and the South park, Snowden township, have been completed.

Two caravans of motor trucks, owned by the county, will be required to move the buffaloes. The first caravan, according to present arrangements, will leave the city November 30 and return by December 3, with 18 head of buffalo. The second caravan will not leave until the return of the first fleet.

Gen. Trexler, only breeder of buffalo east of the Mississippi River, informed the commissioners that the buffalo herd purchased by the county was being corralled and that work of crating would be started next week.

Eighteen of the "Monarchs of the Plains" will be assigned to each of the park wild game preserves.

Erecting of the high steel fences inclosing the preserves will be completed by the end of this week and ready for the herds on their arrival.

In addition to the buffaloes the county commissioners also purchased from Gen. Trexler 50 white-tailed deer to grace the two parks and give them a smack of wild life. The deer will not be brought here until the early part of January.

HITS WIFE WITH POKER; PENALTY IS 18 MONTHS

John Clay, Negro miner of Universal, learned that striking his estranged wife, Mary, over the head with an iron poker is not the approved method of effecting a reconciliation. He was convicted in Criminal Court of aggravated assault and battery and sent by Judge Josiah Cohen to the workhouse for 18 months to three years. Assistant District Attorney B. Meredith Reid showed that the couple met October 20, after a separation, indulged in some drinking together, and the party was interrupted by a quarrel and the poker wielding.

AVOID DIZZY SPELLS

Never well. Always tired and fagged out. Beauty tossed away by neglect. To be beautiful and to keep youth the system must be free from poisonous backwash of constipation, which often causes dizzy spells. For 20 years, Dr. F. M. Edwards gave his patients, in place of calomel, a compound of vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. Known by their olive color. They free the system of poisons that ravage health, energy, beauty.

You need never have sallow complexion, dull eyes, coated tongue, throbbing headaches—all signs that your bowels are clogged, liver is torpid. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly. They act smoothly and without griping. How much better you'll feel and look! Everywhere wise men and women who know the value of good health take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. All druggists, 15c, 30c and 60c.

Lesson No. 9

Question: Can rickets be prevented?

Answer: Yes, by assuring plenty of the rickets-preventing vitamin of cod-liver oil in the diet of mother and baby.

SCOTT'S EMULSION contains all cod-liver oil vitamins in great abundance.

MINE OWNERS OPPOSE NEW PAY PARLEY

"We have nothing to settle."

"We are not interested in a conference."

These two statements summarized the attitude of the two biggest bituminous coal operators in Western Pennsylvania when questioned whether they would be willing to reopen wage negotiations with representatives of the United Mine Workers of America.

Reports circulated here stated that Secretary of Labor James J. Davis was planning to have the miners and operators meet between now and Christmas.

An official of the Pittsburgh Coal Company, the biggest individual bituminous coal mining company in the world, was positive of the stand his firm would take in the question. It renounced the union agreement more than two years ago.

"We are not interested in a conference," said the official.

"Will you agree to a conference if the miners are willing to return on a lower wage scale?" he was asked.

"We are not interested in anything like that," was the reply.

An official of the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corporation was almost as positive in his company's position.

"So far as the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corporation is concerned we have nothing to settle," he said, adding, "We are entirely satisfied with the present situation."

Amplifying his company's position, the official said:

"We are able to get out as much coal as the market will take. The price is extremely low, and that's the whole thing as far as we are concerned."

INDICT THREE IN ELECTION SHOOTING IN SIXTH AVE.

Indictments charging riot were returned against Frank DeBasel, alias Kelly, John Sykes and John Burke as the result of a pre-primary shooting in Sixth avenue, near the Nixon Theater. A similar indictment against James DeBasel, known also as Kelly, was ignored.

ACIDS IN STOMACH CAUSE INDIGESTION

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestants are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from May Drug Co. or any druggist some Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful of powder or four tablets in water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

Artificial Teeth now easy to clean

The sticky slime on plates and bridges is hard to remove. Food sticks in it and ferments. It is unsanitary, unclean. A liquid which dissolves this slime has been discovered at the Mellon Institute, University of Pittsburgh. It is called Mu-Sol-Dent. Nothing equals it. One bottle will convince you. Sore Throat Is Dangerous

Thoxine Relieves Quickly

Don't neglect sore throat—it often leads to tonsilitis, scarlet fever or diphtheria. Take Thoxine, a famous physician's prescription, which is remarkably successful because it works on a new principle—goes direct to the cause not reached by gargles and patent medicines and brings relief within 15 minutes, or money back. One swallow does the work.

Contains no iron, chloroform or other harmful drugs. Safe and sure—pleasant to take—much better than gargles. Ask for Thoxine, 25c, 60c and $1.00. At all druggists.

Sore Throat Prudence

Your medicine shelf is not well stocked without a bottle of Tonsiline, for you don't know what moment it may be needed to relieve a sudden case of Sore Throat. Relieving Sore Throat is Tonsiline's special mission. It is made for that—advertised for that—sold for that one purpose. You will need Tonsiline one of these days, or some night when the drug store is closed—better keep a bottle handy at home.

REAR ADMIRAL BULLARD, CZAR OF AIR, FOUND DEAD

DEATH BELIEVED HASTENED BY OVERWORK

By Universal Service

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—Rear Admiral W. H. G. Bullard, chairman of the Federal Radio Commission and credited with having done more than any other American to develop radio communication, died suddenly here yesterday.

Strain from overwork in his efforts to bring order out of chaos in the air compelled him to leave his office Tuesday for the purpose of taking a two weeks' rest. He was found dead yesterday morning.

RADIO WAS HOBBY

Aside from the broadcasting question and his plans to solve it Admiral Bullard was intensely interested in other phases of radio. Aside from his duties with the Federal Commission he was a delegate to the International Radiotelegraph conference, which has been in continuous session here since October 4. He attended the sessions daily and was constantly driving home the American views and rights.

HELD MANY POSTS

The Admiral graduated from the Naval Academy in 1886. He served on the Columbia in the Spanish-American War, 1898; navigator on the Maine, 1905 to 1906; as executive officer on the same ship from 1906 to 1907; at the Naval Academy, 1907 to 1911; organized department of electrical engineering there; was commandant at San Francisco, 1911 to 1912; superintendent naval radio service, 1912 to 1916 and 1919 to 1921; commanded the battleship Arkansas, 1916 to 1918.

He served in the Atlantic fleet and in the American division of battleships in the British grand fleet in the World War, was a member of the Interallied Commission at Malta; commanded the United States naval forces in the Eastern Mediterranean; member Interallied Commission to put into effect the naval terms of the armistice with Austrian-Hungary, and received surrender of Austro-Hungarian fleet. He was a member of the interallied conference at Paris in January to August, 1919; director of naval communications, March, 1919 to 1921; commander of the Yangtse patrol force, United States Asiatic fleet, 1921-22, and retired on September 30, 1922.

Early in the days when radio became the chief means of communication in the Navy, Admiral Bullard was selected as the superintendent of radio and stationed at Radio, Va., which became the site of the first great transoceanic communication, known as NAA.

His medals and decorations include West Indies and Philippine campaigns, Victory Medal, Distinguished Service Medal, Navy Department, commander Legion of Honor, French; Order of Knights of Polonia Restitutia, Poland. He was a member of the Army and Navy Club, Washington; Officers' Club, Annapolis, and the New York Club.

Admiral Bullard was born in Media, Pa., December 5, 1866, and has always maintained a home there.

He leaves his widow, Mrs. Beirne Saunders Bullard, and a son, Lieut. Commander B. S. Bullard, U. S. N., both of whom resided in Washington. The Admiral also leaves two brothers and two sisters, Howard Bullard, of Hackensack, N. J.; Clarence Bullard, of New York City; Mrs. W. P. Satterfield and Miss Bertie Bullard of Dover, Dela.

FEDERAL TRADE BOARD KILLS "GET-THIN" CURE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—A "follow the directions and grow thin" scheme has been squelched by the Federal Trade Commission. An unnamed dealer who thus promoted the sale of tablets to be taken internally, along with bath salts and soap to be applied externally, agreed to stop representing them as an obesity cure.

reconditioned pianos

TEMPORARY SALES ROOM—967 LIBERTY AVE.

Once more it has become urgent for this store to make the quickest possible disposal of a vast accumulation of "trade-in" pianos.

A spacious downtown salesroom has been leased specially for the purpose—for a short time only—so that the entire stock may be seen at once.

Here you will find pianos from the finest of Pittsburgh homes. Pianos that have been well cared for—that have many years of satisfactory service before them.

Uprights, Player Pianos, Grands, Electric Player Grands—every conceivable type of piano. Many cannot be told from new; some are new, having been sent us as samples; some have been used as demonstrators, but the vast majority are instruments that have been "traded-in" on newer models and these can be bought for almost nothing.

All have been inspected, reconditioned and, if necessary, rebuilt in our own workshops.

The paramount issue now, is to sell them—throw them out—as quickly as possible—without regard to price. Just a small down payment secures them.

The Opening Date Is Tomorrow---Saturday, Nov. 26 The Opening Hour---9 A. M.

LESTER UPRIGHT---$95

For over 50 years this make of Piano has been a leader. This one in particular is in splendid condition and apparently has had but little use. It is well worth a lot more money. $5 per month.

There will be no interest charges on any of these instruments. Their price mark represents their total cost to you.

Delivery without charge within 50 miles of Pittsburgh.

TERMS—

The terms as in the past will be most liberal.

$3 to $5 per month on Upright Pianos.

$5 to $8 per month on Player Pianos.

$7.50 to $10 per month on Grand Pianos.

A bench or stool will be included with all Upright Pianos. A bench and your own selection of Q. R. S. rolls with all Player Pianos. A duet bench with all Grand Pianos.

COLBY & DUNCAN---$45

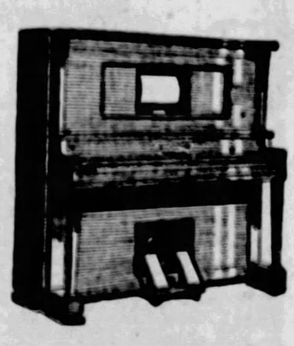
Splendid rich-toned Piano for which you would expect to pay at least twice the amount. $4.00 per month. A most moderate amount considering the instrument offered.

Hardman Upright. One of those old, reliably-built instruments that will last longer today than an ordinary Piano. That full, deep tone that only the Master Piano builder can put in his instrument. A real buy. $5.00 per month..... $85

Steinway Upright. Splendid tone and although quite old is in very good condition and worth more money. $4 per month..... $135

Auto-Piano Player. In dark mahogany case, originally sold for $550.00. Shows very little wear, in splendid condition. Bench and your own selection of Q. R. S. rolls included. $6 per month..... $265

Behr Bros. Player. A splendid Player Piano, full 88-note, can hardly be told from a new instrument. Carries manufacturer's guarantee for 5 years. Bench and your own selection of Q. R. S. rolls included. $6 per month.... $255



A good used Piano is always better than a cheap new one.

These are not actual photographs, just stock cuts and do not do justice to these fine instruments.

Your old Piano or Talking Machine may be traded in at their full cash value.

Store hours—Temporary store-room will be open from 9 A. M. to 8 P. M. every day during sale.

Prices:

$ 50 up on Upright Pianos
$165 up on Player Pianos
$365 up on Grand Pianos

Grand Pianos

This is but a sample of exceptional value in Grand Pianos. Small, plain case, excellent tone, shows very little use. $10 per month. Duet bench included.

$365

Partial list of these fine rebuilt pianos. Chickering, Steinway, Sohmer, Behning, Angelus, W. F. Frederick, Hardman, Euphonia, Hallet-Davis, Gordon, Cecilian, Schubert, Adams, Bellman, Henry F. Miller, Shattinger, Hinze, Barmore, Ellington. Story & Clark, Weiler, Keller Bros., Mathusheh, Sterling, Richmond, Behr Bros., Wellsmore. Bentley, Baus, Ludwig, Reimer, Lindeman, Henderson. Marshall, Richardson, Radle, Regal, Victor, Fisher Player.

SENTENCE DRUG STORE ROBBER

Harry D. Bloecher, a chauffeur, of 1638 Lincoln avenue, was sentenced to the penitentiary for two to four years in Criminal Court by Judge James R. Macfarlane after pleading to robbery. He attempted to hold up the drug store of George Bell, 1213 Fifth avenue, the night of October 16 at the point of an automatic, it was said, and a gun battle ensued between the robber and J. J. Streets, of 312 Elysian avenue, a special policeman, who shot Bloecher as he fled from the store. Employers and friends testified to the previous good reputation of Bloecher, who said he was drunk that night and could not recall the robbery.

SEIZE BIG STILL IN GARAGE

Federal prohibition agents in a raid at a one-story garage on Highland avenue, Turtle Creek, found a secret compartment beneath the floor of the garage, in which they reported finding a 250-gallon still, four barrels and other containers holding 100 gallons of whisky, four 300-gallon vats, 56 barrels of mash and a half-barrel of molasses. The molasses was used as a substitute for corn sugar in making the whisky, according to the agents. In connection with the raid they arrested Theodore Coste, 16, who was released under $1,000 bond pending a hearing before the United States commissioner.

GIRL IS GRILLED IN HUNT FOR VOGEL

Still No Clue to Man Missing Two Weeks

The disappearance of George J. Vogel, 42, chain sore proprietor, missing two weeks from his home, 423 North School street, Avalon, continues to mystify his family and friends. Detectives working on the case today had made little progress in their search and were perplexed between theories of suicide and foul play.

Miss Myrtle Gift, of 1123 Payette street, said to be a friend of the missing man, questioned by detectives on Wednesday, was unable to throw light on the case, and an anonymous letter to police stating that Vogel was shackled to the bed in a third-floor room of a house near the West Penn Hospital developed nothing. Detectives Michael Feeney and Clarence Bader, who investigated the "tip" in the letter, give it little credence.

"I want to see that letter and study its handwriting," said Charles Vogel, a brother of the missing man. "There are two other persons I want to see, and after I talk with them and study the letter I may have a new clue. Otherwise we still are in the dark as to what has happened to George."

The finding of Vogel's automobile in Dasher street, North Side, within a few yards of the waters of the Allegheny river, caused the theory of suicide to be advanced. The car was found November 17, about a week after Vogel disappeared. The family discredits the theory of suicide and recalls threats said to have been made against his life as indicating the possibility of foul play.

Robert Vogel, 17, a son of the missing man, is in St. John's General Hospital recovering from an operation for appendicitis. The boy is a member of the Avalon High School football team and was stricken with appendicitis following a game last Saturday.

TWO INJURED AS AUTO, JUNK WAGON CRASH

Two men are in the McKeesport Hospital from injuries suffered this morning in a collision between an automobile and a junk wagon at Riverton street and Fifth avenue, McKeesport. Samuel Katz, 52, 937 Rose street, McKeesport, driver of the junk wagon, is in a serious condition from a fractured pelvis and right hip. Harry Gruber, 30, 1208 Capitol avenue, driver of the auto, has a fractured right arm.

AUTO SMASHED BY TRAIN, DRIVER HURT SLIGHTLY

KANE, Pa., Nov. 25.—George P. McConnell is a lucky man. When his automobile was reduced to kindling wood when hit by a Pennsylvania Railroad freight train at the Fraley street crossing, he escaped with slight bruises.

WAYNESBURG PARTY WILL SEE ARMY-NAVY PLAY

WAYNESBURG, Nov. 25.—A. B. Stafford, Clyde M. Call, John McCracken, W. E. Bailey and Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Montgomery formed a party which left here yesterday for New York City, where they will attend the Army-Navy football game tomorrow.

"My Skin Is Hopeless"

You won't say that if you will use the skin corrective that works two ways at once! Your skin must be both cleared and healed. Sulphur is a remarkable skin clarifier, while nothing is better for healing than menthol. The two makes a complete skin corrective, something you have not had before. While the sulphur clears up the pimples, blackheads and eczema blotches, the menthol heals the broken and sore tissue. It's wonderful how this combination works. Long-standing cases of skin troubles are cleared up often in two or three days' time. Your druggist has Mentho Sulphur in jars, ready to use, at a few cents cost. One night's use will give you the surprise of your life.

FROSH HAZERS PUNISHED

GUELPH, Ont., Nov. 25.—(AP.)—A fine of $150 was levied upon members of the freshman class of the Ontario Agriculture College as punishment for the hazing of Edwin Beddoes, an English student who was said to have "squealed" to authorities over a minor matter.

The punishment, which also included confinement of each member of the freshman class every night in the week, except one, was inflicted at a joint meeting of faculty and student bodies.

Beddoes was bundled into a pig crate, dragged through the crowded streets, and then was offered for auction to the townfolk. After he was released he was pelted with ripe tomatoes and other missiles.

ABRASIVE PRICE FIXING ARGUMENT WEDNESDAY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—Final argument on the Federal Trade Commission's charges of stifling of competition and price-fixing in the abrasive industry will be had at a hearing here next Wednesday, it was announced. The Abrasive Paper and Cloth Manufacturers' Exchange, its officers and 10 firms are named in the commission's complaint.

Three Studebaker Cars Exceed Mile a Minute For Full 25,000 Miles

Roadsters, Certified as Stock by A. A. A., Average 65 M. P. H. for Distance, Sedan, 61 M. P. H.—New World's Records.

[illegible] world records for endurance and speed have been established by two Studebaker Commander roadsters and a Studebaker Commodore sedan on the Atlantic City speedway.

Announcement to this effect is made here by the Contest Board of the American Automobile Association, which supervises official racing and offshoots at speed and endurance tests of automobiles in the United States.

All three cars participating in the tests on the Atlantic City speedway, according to the Contest Board's statement, traveled 25,000 miles in less than 25,000 minutes, [illegible] made by any one [illegible]

25 officials of the American Automobile Association, for nearly 16 days until the 25,000 miles had been completed.

The official speed of the two roadsters which started and finished simultaneously, was 65.31 miles per hour. The official speed of the sedan was 61.96 miles per hour.

The cars were dismantled by the Technical Committee of the Contest Board of the American Automobile Association following the test, and certified to be strictly stock cars in every respect. They ran fully equipped as sold by the Studebaker Corporation of America.

It is great to have a clear skin

A clear skin means everything to the popularity of men and women. You cannot get it with external applications. If you are unfortunate enough to have pimples or skin blemishes, in justice to your friends and yourself, you should treat the source of the trouble. Nature will then provide the complexion which is so much desired.

Thousands have been enabled to free themselves of unsightly blemishes and painful annoyances by taking a course of S.S.S.

You owe it to yourself to try S.S.S. It helps Nature build up red corpuscles. It improves the processes by which the blood is nourished.

"I was troubled with pimples and blackheads, but thanks to S.S.S., I got rid of them. My face now has a smooth feeling. I think S.S.S. does many wonders for the system. Besides giving me a clear complexion, it gave me a healthful look." Miss Angela Annunzio, 1007 S. Racine Ave., Chicago, Ill.

S.S.S. is made from the fresh roots of medicinal herbs and plants, and is prepared in a scientific way in a modern laboratory. It is time-tried and reliable.

S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

Houdini Was Not a Spirit Medium, Conan Doyle Is Talking Nonsense, Says Hardeen, Dead Man's Brother

By GEORGE SEIBEL

TWO years younger than his brother, the late Houdini, the magician Hardeen, showing his bag of tricks at the Davis this week, resembles Houdini facially and in other ways—particularly in his aversion to spirit mediums. I found Hardeen in the little cottage built up in one corner of the Davis stage, where his apparatus is stored to be safe from interference and where his little menagerie dwells all unconscious of the applause it receives at every performance.

GEORGE SEIBEL

"Have you seen that Sir Arthur Conan Doyle says your brother Harry was a spirit medium, and that is how he did his tricks?" I asked Hardeen, after telling him of the banquet the Pittsburgh magicians have arranged in his honor tonight.

He laughed.

"If Sir Arthur ever gets a spirit message from Houdini, he won't publish it, for Harry's opinion was not flattering to Sir Arthur's intelligence."

The last time I had spoken with Houdini he expressed doubts as to Doyle's rationality, though he seemed to think the novelist was sincere in his spiritualistic beliefs. But Houdini hated the whole tribe of mediums with a hearty hate. Hardeen is not so vehement, but has no use for them either.

"The most famous mediums have been exposed over and over," he said, "but their dupes keep on believing. I often hear people say that if scientists like Sir Oliver Lodge, Sir William Crookes, and Alfred Russel Wallace believed in spiritualism, there must be something in it. But a scientist, being a sincere man himself, is the easiest to fool. No scientist can detect or explain my tricks, I hope, but that doesn't prove I have spirits helping me. Wish I had—I'd not need to carry so large a company. I could use a good spirit, kind to animals, to take care of my bunnies and pigeons. Another spirit, handy with tools, could look after my mechanical apparatus. Bring 'em on—bring 'em on."

"Are most mediums conjurors?"

"Well, Eusapia Palladino, who died in 1918, had married a traveling conjuror early in life, and that was where she learned her tricks, no doubt. All the mediums who have been exposed have been caught in tricks because they were amateurish or awkward. But mediums have a great advantage over conjurors; they mostly work in the dark and with gullible people who want to believe in mysteries and marvels."

"Then you have no mediumistic powers, Mr. Hardeen?"

"No more than my brother Harry had. We traveled together for many years. Spiritualists have made the claim that when he escaped from a sealed box, it was his astral body that appeared outside; and that after the performance we got his human body out of the box and let the astral body go back, or he would have died. All that is stuff and nonsense—and I know it. Harry Houdini was the greatest conjuror America has produced—we were born in Wisconsin—and he performed his marvels by natural means. The Fox Sisters, the Davenport Brothers, Home and Slade, and many other mediums, were exposed frequently. Even Home, whom they called their 'Napoleon,' was unable to fool the poet Browning, who satirized him as 'Mr. Sludge the Medium.' Yet the spiritualists can convert me very easily. As soon as I get one message from Harry—and I think he ought to write me first—I'll give seances myself. Till then I'll believe in no spirits except the ones the bootlegger purveys."

MARY ALDEN ADDED TO GILBERT PICTURE

Mary Alden, one of the screen's most famous mothers, has been added to the cast of John Gilbert's "The Cossacks," now in production on the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot. She will have the role of the mother of the hero and wife of a Cossack fighting chief. The supporting cast of "The Cossack," which is being directed by George Hill, now includes Renee Adoree, in the feminine lead, Ernest Torrence, Josephine Borio, Paul Hurst, Dale Fuller and Gen. Theodore Lodi. The latter is a former officer of the Russian Army.

Griffith Lets Film Extras Manage Themselves

The easiest way to manager a thousand "extras" is to let them manage themselves. That is D. W. Griffith's successful method of handling mob scenes. He doesn't worry or fret about the conduct of his "atmosphere" players, but briefly explains what he wants done and then allows them to work out their problems naturally.

"In this manner," says Griffith, "the 'extras' voluntarily realize that they are actors all, and that the director takes it for granted each is an individualist perfectly capable of self expression."

This unusual method of guiding the actions of large crowds, unquestionably the most difficult of all directorial problems, was successfully illustrated by Griffith during the filming of the big battle scenes in "The Drums of Love," which he made for United Artists.

"BEFORE ADAM," LONDON STORY, TO BE FILMED

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer will make a picture based on Jack London's dramatic story of primitive man, "Before Adam." This book was among the late novelist's most popular works, along with "The Call of the Wild," "The Abysmal Brute" and "The Sea Wolf." No announcement has been made yet as to director or cast.

M'CORMACK SINGS HERE THURSDAY, DECEMBER 1

John McCormack will give a recital next Thursday in Syria Mosque under the local management of James A. Bortz. McCormack has not been heard here for several seasons. His program will include new songs and old favorites.

Women Are a Drag

ANYWAY, that's what Leatrice Joy's puppy, Peter, thinks when he wants to chase a cat and she wants to just take a walk. Then she finds that though she may be a leading woman on the screen Peter doesn't recognize any leading strings not fastened to a truck. When Peter dines well half the families of Hollywood find the meat supply at the butchers' has been exhausted.

STAGEPROGRAMS ARE VARIED

The revival of Shakespeare's gay comedy, "The Merry Wives of Windsor," with Mrs. Fiske as Mistress Page and Otis Skinner in the role of Sir John Falstaff, comes to the Nixon next Monday evening for one week only. Henrietta Crosman will play Mistress Ford. In the supporting company will be Lawrence Cecil, Henry Mowbray, Geoffrey Wardwell, Owen Meech, France Bendtsen, Will Geer, W. C. Masson, Eleanor Gordon and Elaine Temple.

In George White's "Scandals," the current attraction in the Alvin, which remains next week, are Ann Pennington, Willie and Eugene Howard, Buster and John West, Frances Williams, Harry Richman, Williams Sisters, Tom Patricola and others. "Scandals" will play another matinee tomorrow.

Hardeen, who is headlining the Davis bill this week, is going to have an opportunity tonight to escape from a packing case. Manager Leo Lehman of May, Stern & Co. challenged Hardeen, who has accepted the challenge, to extricate himself from a box specially constructed by May, Stern employes, without in any manner damaging the box.

The story of Chatrand, the Great, which forms the plot of "The Spider," which is having an extended run in the Pitt, first appeared as a four-part serial story. The story was of a mind-reader, whose act was interrupted. Around this incident Howard Oursler and Lowell Brentano built "The Spider."

The coming Gayety attraction, "High Hat Review," with Billy Gilbert as star comic, will open with Sunday midnight show.

Harry Kessler and his company of funmakers, singers and dancers in a skit, "Oh Uncle," are to be the vaudeville feature in the Harris next week. The screen presentation will be Buck Jones in "Black Jack," a romance of lawless days of Old Nevada.

John Philip Sousa and his band will be a special feature in the Penn next week. On the screen will be the Duncan Sisters in "Topsy and Eva."

"Fatty" Arbuckle comes to the Aldine stage next week as a vaudeville feature. The screen will present Conway Tearle in "The Isle of Forgotten Women."

Rose and Arthur Boylan, coming to the Grand next week, will offer a program of comedy dances. Mary Astor in "Rose of the Golden West" will be on the screen.

Louise Brooks, appearing in "The City Gone Wild," coming to the Olympic next week, was chosen as one of the Paramount junior stars of 1927.

Stella Morrissey, long prominent in the burlesque field, is with "Parisian Flappers," which comes to the Academy next week. She will head the cast.

The vaudeville feature the first half of next week in the Sheridan Square will be Jimmy Lions, comedian, who terms himself "The Ambassador." The last three days of the week the feature attraction will be Nick Altrock and Al Schacht, the famous baseball clowns.

Lion Gives Movie Cook Real Thrills

How a mountain lion attracted by the aroma of meat stalked a chuck wagon, treed the cooks and was shot by Tom Mix is the story brought back recently to Hollywood from a Fox Films location high in the Sierras.

The company went supperless when the wagon failed to show up, after the actors and camera men had moved 10 miles from the previous day's location. A search failed to locate it.

The next morning, the cook and his helper arrived with a thrilling explanation. A lion had smelled the meat, and attacked the two men. They took to the trees. Then the lion ripped the canvas from the wagon, but failed to get the boxed food.

He quit his clawing and growling after an hour, but the frightened men stayed aloft until daylight and then hurried to camp, leaving the wagon behind. Mix got aboard his horse, Tony, and trailed the lion to a cave. A brush smudge fire drove out the animal and Mix killed him with one shot.

Veteran of Stage Likes Screen Work Best

A screen actor has a decided advantage over the stage player, in the opinion of Joseph Cawthorn, who trod the boards for many years and who is now a member of the Hollywood motion picture colony.

"There can be no argument on that score, to my mind," he declared. "A stage actor often takes four weeks to rehearse the big scene, and a single blunder will wreck all his hard work. Not so with his brother of the screen. He has nothing to rehearse, with the exception of the spoken titles, and, if he flops, the scene can be shot again or cut out entirely should the director so decide."

Madge Bellamy, James Hall and Maude Fulton, all formerly of the legitimate stage, agreed they had no argument to offer Cawthorn's conclusions. All four celebrities are cast in "Silk Legs," Fox comedy-drama.

Smart Hair without Stickiness!

New Liquid "Hair Groom" is a clean sparkling liquid which the hair absorbs—therefore doesn't show. A few drops keeps the hair combed and glossy all day with no suggestion of grease or stickiness. Even stubborn or shampooed hair stays "put" in any style you like. Large bottle costs only a few cents at druggists.

HOW MISERY COMES TO MILLIONS

Thousands of families are in want today! Misery comes, often from a simple yet deadly cause.

Father or mother takes sick. Perhaps wrong treatment is taken—a wrong diagnosis? Prolonged illness—no work, no money! System poisoning—professionally called TOXEMIA—was likely the cause. Few people suspect this insidious disease. Forty or more symptoms may mean its beginning. Ordinary laxative pills and waters don't clean out the poison wastes that cause it. Take PARTOLA, the internal antiseptic and laxative. That's the remedy for a thousand ills, because it prevents! All good druggists sell regular box of PARTOLA 30¢, double size 50¢.

U. S. LIKELY TO REPLACE SCHENLEY FLOOD LOSS

REPAIRS BEGUN ON WRECKED LOCK WALL

FREEPORT, Nov. 25.—Damage to private property along the Allegheny River at Schenley, about a mile above here, probably will be replaced by the United States government, it is believed, by residents of the town which was almost swept away by the flood waters which wrecked the concrete abutment at Lock No. 6 last Saturday.

Reconstruction work is well under way, stone and slag being used to fill in the gap behind the abutment and plans are being considered by the government engineers' office at Pittsburgh for rebuilding the bank which was torn by the rushing waters. The damage to the abutment was placed at $15,000 by engineers, but no estimate has been made of the personal property loss or the cost of repairing the bank.

In the matter of reinforcing the bank so that there will be no recurrance of last week's damage, government engineers are contemplating running a spur line from the Pennsylvania Railroad along the bank to haul stone and slag to fill in the huge gap. This work will be started as soon as possible so there will be no danger from floods next spring, it was announced.

Stakeholders Flee, Students Sad

A large number of students at the University of Pittsburgh lost most of the joy due them for the victory of the Pitt football team over Penn State yesterday when they found that the respectable C. E. Hugus of New York, who took all bets of the students and Oakland business men, had decamped with their money, believed to total approximately $8,000.

A delegation of students, headed by L. L. Sutton of a fraternity house at 737 Darragh street, visited the City Detective Bureau late yesterday and told of the boys at the house pooling their money and placing it with Hugus, who said he represented the C. L. Darnell & Co. of New York, and who was stopping at the Schenley Hotel.

Hugus is said to have came to Pittsburgh a week ago and then notified the students and Oakland business men, by means of a circular letter, that he was willing to accept bets on the game. One business man is known to have wagered $1,000.

When the students went to the hotel to collect their bets after the game they learned that Hugus had left for Cleveland Wednesday and from all indications he does not intend to return here to pay off his losings. He is described as being a well dressed man of middle age, having red hair and a small red mustache.

Men's Overcoats and Winter Suits
—The Finest Assortment in Pittsburgh

$40 $50 $60

Quantity assortments, well-varied displays, correct styles . . . these are most important factors in a man's choice of a suit or an overcoat. At Kaufmann's, these are essentials of every showing—at every price.

Men choose confidently in the Store for Men—and their confidence is fully vindicated by displays a little finer, assortments a little fuller and variety a little more attractive.

THE SUITS—

—Fabrics are sturdy yet pliant to fine tailoring lines, patterns that express smartness in ways as varied as the tastes that will choose them. And the assortments at each price provide a size range that covers ordinary and unusual needs with ease.

THE OVERCOATS—

—burly ones, trim ones—raglans and box styles of positive warmth—box styles and Chesterfields of graceful, sure styling. Plenty of blues and oxford greys—enough mixed and patterned fabrics to make the showings all the more enticing. You'll relish choosing from these overcoats—and the weather suggests an immediate choice.

Battersby of London Sends Smart New Winter Derbies

$10

Derbies as swank as a Bond St. shop window—made in London and imported by us to give Pittsburgh men a chance to top their apparel with a smartness decidedly English. These have round crowns and semi-curl brims—their trim, neat lines lend a style-ful note that will well become the wearer of a Chesterfield overcoat. And leading men's stylists assure us this will be a "Derby Winter."

If.....Two sisters love the same man?

FIREMEN FAIL TO GO TO FIRE; 2 HOMES BURN

GEORGIE PICKED UP?

THE NEXT SECOND ANN saw Georgie get out of the shining roadster and wave a goodby to the question: "Be at the same place tomorrow?"

Introducing Georgie, Ann, Orphan Sisters, in a Story of Romance

I can get you the job," Ann had said to her sister.

Georgie's tiny mouth had curved mutinously. "I don't care. I just won't work in a factory—that's all there is to it. I won't go around telling people I work in a factory—you may if you want to."

"But, Georgie, I don't, either. But we just have to—every dollar is so necessary."

"Oh, now you're going to preach," Georgette had exclaimed. That let's me out! Don't take things so seriously—it gives me the blues, Ann!"

Georgette had run off, dismissing everything from her mind, and Ann had sighed and smiled at the same time.

Did she preach—really preach? Perhaps, but when she had grown so used to feeling herself the responsible head, that perhaps she was too solemn. Now that she and Georgie were alone in the world, sharing a room at Mrs. O'Leary's boarding house, living along from one day to the next, someone had to be solemn and sensible!

And to be solemn at twenty-three, to treat Georgie as if she were a baby because she was nineteen, that was all wrong. In future she'd be quite different: Georgie was old enough to look out for herself, and there was no need of worrying after all.

Having reached this conclusion, Ann continued to go on just as she always had, worrying about Georgie, giving her her way, taking on her own shoulders the innumerable little problems with which life seemed eternally filled.

Now Georgie was working in the insurance office, rolling a sheet of paper lazily into her machine, looking up under her lashes with a glance at once impertinent and strangely lovable at the people who came into the office. And Ann worked in the roar of machinery, in the far part of the city.

But thinking of Georgie now, as the noon hour approached, Ann smiled. She was proud of Georgie, of her charming, natural ways, of the ease which she attracted men, the swiftness and daring of her impulses.

Perhaps too swift, to daring . . . Ann closed her eyes. Georgie was young, but there was Bill Warren, and Bill loved Georgie. Did Georgie love him? No one knew, not even Georgie herself.

Bill was a darling. Ann reflected, and not a bit sober and dull, for all that he was so reliable, so honest. He wasn't handsome, but he was terribly young and nice looking. And he was awfully poor, but then he was going to be awfully rich. Didn't he even say so himself?

It would be a good thing for Georgie to marry him—to marry him right now in the first flush of her youth and sweetness, Georgie married! Ann smiled again. Somebody must look for her, take care of her. Bill—yes, Bill Warren was the man!

A whistle shrieked. Ann rose and left her desk. As she crossed the yard into which the workers were already streaming, she saw a figure at the gates. It was the man she had been thinking about, Bill Warren himself.

"Hello, Ann. Let's eat together. Come on—what do you say?"

"I'd love to, Bill."

He looked at her with his smiling eyes, brown eyes that gazed steadily. He gave a little squint to keep the sun out of them, grinned at her. What a peach he was, she thought!

"What are you doing way out here, Bill?"

"Oh, I don't know. Georgie was lunching with somebody or other." His voice went off in a grumble, and for a moment the sun was out of his smile. "Thought I'd run over and grab you."

"Next best to thing to Georgie?" Ann smiled.

"Oh, no of course not," he said indignantly. "I like you, too."

It was the simplest kind of statement, said in the simplest kind of tone, but suddenly something mysterious happened to Ann. She felt a confused sense of emotion rush over her. She looked away. Why—why had that affected her like that?

She decided it was one of the mysterious moods with which life is made up, as they sat over lunch in the corner cafeteria.

Bill was telling her all about his car.

"I call it the Bug. It's swell looking. I got an old tin body, and painted it myself. Bright yellow. See? And though the engine's awfully old, you ought to hear it roar. Why, say, Ann, I look like a million dollars in it."

Ann laughed. "You're about ten years old, Bill," she said. "That's what makes you so nice."

"Aw, stop kidding me. Wait till you see the Bug—no kidding."

They were almost through lunch. Bill looked away. His face had grown a little red.

"Listen, Ann, I don't know how to say it, but—but do you suppose Georgie—I mean, does Georgie like me?"

Ann's heart strings seemed to tighten. The warm glow in his face, the shaken tones of his voice! Georgie had a reason to be proud to make a man, a man as nice as Bill Warren, feel like that about her. A little stab, as if of loneliness, ran through Ann.

"I don't know, Bill," she said quietly. "She's never said anything. But—but why don't you ask her?"

"I'm afraid to—honest."

"Don't be afraid."

"I'll ask her—tonight!"

He seemed to dive into his pocket. "Look—I'll show you. No one else has seen it yet except my pal, Joe."

He pulled out a tiny box. A ring with a fine but small diamond was revealed to Ann's gaze.

"Why, Bill," she said, "you've come to me, asking for advice, and you'd made up your mind already."

"Maybe all I wanted was encouragement."

Ann put her hand over Bill's. "I do like you, Bill," she said in a low voice. "And for Georgie's sake, I hope that she will say yes."

"Thanks, Ann. Gosh, you're nice. Next to Georgie you're the nicest person in the world." He frowned. "Well, gotta be getting back to the office. I've got to show 'em I've got real stuff. Wait till I'm running that office myself!"

Ann went back to the factory office, slowly. She felt troubled, vaguely discontented. What was the matter? It was a lovely day, and she was dispirited or tired or anything. Yet somehow there was so much joy in the world, so much longing and adoration, and yet she was outside of it all, not really living.

At 4 o'clock, the office door swung back for the hundredth time. Jimmy McCormick stepped up to her desk.

"Wouldn't care to see a show tonight, would you?" he asked awkwardly.

"I'd love to, Jimmy, except that I've promised Georgie to get her new dress ready in time for tomorrow."

"Oh." His face had fallen. He looked awkward and tongue-tied. He wasn't boyish like Bill. Jimmy was nearly 30, a big, silent man who managed one of the departments. His face was red, and his hands, though strong and capable looking, had none of the nervous interesting look of Bill's.

Ann knew he liked her. Every once in a while she went to a movie with him, and once or twice had gone to dances. But they were just friends—that was all. It was hard to think of Jimmy in any other way. He was just good and nice, and when you had said that you had said everything.

For one moment it flashed across Ann that perhaps Jimmy thought of her as Bill thought of Georgie. But that was impossible. Jimmy was so heavy and shy and silent—it was hard imagining him ever really falling in love.

He stood there still, waiting, trying to say something, and not being able to.

It was hard to talk to him. Somehow Ann was almost relieved when at last he lumbered away with his slow, heavy body, his long, powerful arms swinging at his sides as if to balance himself.

The long day came to an end. Abruptly the machinery ceased to whir and roar. Desks banged down. The president's car purred up to the door. Crowds pushed and scrambled for the trolley that ran in front of the long concrete buildings.

Ann ran and tried to find a place in one car from which people seemed to be bulging already. Suddenly the crowd gave way a little. She found a breathing space, and managed to get a strap. Looking up, she saw Jimmy McCormick, his powerful shoulders holding the crowd back just in front of her. He smiled. Ann nodded gratefully, but it was impossible to speak, even to say good-by when he fought his way off a few blocks later.

At Main and Digby streets, she transferred to the line that ran near Mrs. O'Leary's boarding house. She was glad to get out at last. She was tired—it was harder work getting home from the factory than the work she did there, she sometimes thought.

A shinning car, of a handsome late model, sped past. There was a girl next to the man driving it—the wind whipping her hair and her cheeks. It was gone like an arrow, before Ann had time to look. But she thought a little wistfully of what life must be like when you had all the money and dresses you wanted, and you went on in shining new cars and nothing really to worry about.

Turning the corner, she noticed that the roadster had stopped before Mrs. O'Leary's door, and the girl was getting out. Then the next second she saw who the girl was. It was Georgie!

CHAPTER II.

YES, it certainly was Georgie, Georgie with her quick smile, her chin tilted provokingly, her impudent, charming little gestures.

And the man in the corner, he was leaning towards her, smiling, taking in her figure with cool, searching eyes. His hand strayed across his mouth as if to hide that smile, and he glanced up at Mrs. Leary's boarding house as if to fix the number once and for all in his mind.

By this time Ann had reached them. Georgie, turning, saw her, and broke off in the middle of a sentence.

"Hello, Ann, darling!"

Ann's eyes went impersonally to the man in the car. About 32. Rather good-looking in an unpleasant way, with a small, carefully tended mustache, a soft felt hat jammed carelessly at an angle on his roundish head.

The eyes that gazed back at her were equally impersonal and scrutinizing. They seemed to measure her in a flash by some set standards of their own, to judge her, pass sentence, and forget her.

Ann knew the type: worldly, "hard-boiled," craftily fond of the enjoyments that can be purchased, a cruel nature under a glamor of surface geniality.

The glance that had weighed Ann had found her wanting. Deliberately it passed on with more pleasantness and returned to Georgie.

Georgie was not introducing them. Ann knew why, and was angry. Georgie didn't know his name. A pick-up—that was it. Ann had scolded Georgie before, made her promise. Georgie would promise anything. Why shouldn't she, when she forgot what she had promised the next moment? And Ann had felt like a prude and been silent.

Only this time—this time she felt herself in the right. Men like this man in the roadster, sleek, lying, giving themselves the airs of riches on tiny incomes, selfish, dishonorable, working like wolves behind a mask.

Georgie thought she knew everything. She wouldn't listen—she might get herself in an unhappy tangle through her reckless self-confidence.

Ann stood frowning, biting her lip. The man in the roadster shifted his gears.

"Always there?" he inquired pointedly to Georgie, ignoring Ann calmly. "At that same place, I mean? Well, tomorrow . . . "

His voice trailed off, was lost in the louder hum of the motor.

"Oh, yes, you'll see me there!" Georgie taunted him, a challenge in every accent, promise and refusal mingled in her gay voice.

Strange how different people were. Ann couldn't talk like that, couldn't act like that. It came instinctively to Georgie. No wonder men liked her with her cheerfulness, her charming impertinence, her promise of a chase and an adventure!

The man in the car with a final, careless nod had gone. Georgie's face had lost its fresh, youthful vivacity—Georgie's looks were for men. She could be serious enough, natural enough, to women—even her sister.

And her face was now a little deant. As if expecting Ann to scold her or be cross, she had already assumed a defensive hostility.

She ran up the stairs, burst open the door, so that Ann had no time to say anything. But what was there to say? Georgie knew Ann disapproved, and Georgie resented Ann's interference.

But though she resented it, perhaps she secretly understood it, even felt a little guilty. When Ann reached their room on the third floor, Georgie was nowhere to be seen. Her hat was flung on top of the dresser. The wide bed, with its faded, cream-colored counterpane, the carpet from which the nap had worn, the undersized closet—they were all so familiar, so depressing.

No wonder Georgie sought an escape from the life that these represented. With her youth, her high spirits, how could she be blamed for wanting those pleasures which could be scattered by good-looking, sleek men with roadsters and enough spare cash to show off?

We Look Cuckoo In Prosperity, Will Says

WILL ROGERS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Nov. 25.—If you think we are not prosperous and cuckoo both, read these "three hundred thousand dollars for seat on stock exchange." You pay that for a seat where nobody sits down; they stand and yell and sell something they haven't got, and buy something they will never get. You can get on the curb for forty thousand. All you have to do is make signs to a guy in a window, and try to keep from being run over by a truck. In the next column we read, "Kentucky prohibits betting on races." You can gamble on how high people pay for their bread, but you can't bet on how fast a horse will run. We must appear odd to the foreigners.

HANDICRAFT OF PATIENTS

Occupational therapy at St. Francis Hospital is used to keep patients mind from their illnesses, greatly expediting their recovery, physicians claim. Wooden animals, a favorite product, shown on the shelf tier, are fashioned with a surprising skill. Among the quickest sellers the hospital turns out for these sales are pieces of dolls furniture. He is a bed, with the doll sleeping soundly under sheets, blankets and even a silken spread among the other novelties fashioned for the hospital's semi-annual sale, which started yesterday and continues today and tomorrow.

RUG WEAVER

Many of the patients take up rug weaving. These rugs, along with dozens of other articles made by the patients, will be sold at the hospital to furnish funds to buy new raw material for the workers. The sale started yesterday and will continue today and tomorrow. It is a semi-annual affair.

Firemen Fail to Go to Fire; 2 Homes Burn

Failure of the Mifflin township chemical truck to function and the Homestead fire department to respond to an alarm late last night resulted in the destruction by fire of two new frame dwellings in the Ball plan, Homestead avenue, Mifflin township. The damage was estimated at $13,000.

An alarm was sent to Mifflin township firemen and, when the new chemical truck of the department failed to start, a call was sent to the Homestead fire department. When that department failed to reach the scene within a half hour, another alarm was sent to West Homestead firemen, who arrived too late to save the houses.

The houses, recently completed, were untenanted. They were owned by Alfred Avankic of Homestead. Avankic's brother, who had rented one of the houses, had moved his furniture into the place Wednesday. The furniture was destroyed. The cause of the fire was not learned.

Homestead firemen, when summoned to the fire, promised they would respond, according to Mifflin firemen. The Homestead department said it had no authority to answer the alarm.

Returning from the fire in the Ball plan, West Homestead firemen discovered flames in a portable school adjoining the Franklin School, Vondera plan. They were extinguished with $1,500 loss.

Firemen reported to county detectives that the building had been ransacked. The fire started under the teacher's desk. Books and papers were strewn about the place and blinds ripped from the window and one window had been broken.

'UNLOADED' GUN KILLS GIRL

KANE, Pa., Nov. 25.—Victim of the hoary "empty" gun mistake, Hilda, 7, daughter of Charles Colson, lies dead today in her home at East Medfort.

Hilda was watching her father and two others at target practice on the Thanksgiving holiday in the rear of the Colson home. James Nosco, one of the marksmen, fired what he thought was the last cartridge in his rifle at the target, then pointed the gun at the little girl and pulled the trigger.

LOVE'S EMBERS by Adele Garrison

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

Harry Underwood Emerges From the Shadows

THAT Philip Veritzen was piqued was plainly to be seen. I hastened to make the amends which really were due him for my delay in answering his query concerning Harry Underwood.

"I am so sorry," I said contritely. "I was unpardonably rude. Your question was perfectly all right and I am ready to answer it. I delayed only because the query brought a rush of memories and speculations to me which made me 'forget my manners.' Please forgive me!"

He leaned toward me, smiling quizzically, yet with that queer, elusive spark of flame far back in his eyes.

"I wonder if you know how delightfully intriguing you are when you are penitent," he said. "I do hope you will be extremely rude to me sometime, so that I may see you in a really contrite mood."

"I am afraid you would be disappointed," I said, returning the smile, but investing me with a determined little note which I hoped he would recognize. "If I ever have occasion to be extremely rude to anyone I surely am penitent. But all this is beside the question which you asked me. I do wish to answer it more satisfactorily, but I can tell you only that I have not seen Harry Underwood for several years and have no idea where he is."

"I understood that he had dropped out of sight," Mr. Veritzen said thoughtfully. "I am sorry. He was a bizarre sort of chap, but I liked him immensely. Now, remember, you agreed to stop me if any questions were annoying or embarrassing to you, but I should like to know this: Does Mrs. Underwood know where he is?"

"I am sure she doesn't." I said, remembering a little speech of Lillian's to the effect that she did not know whether Harry were dead or alive.

Mr. Veritzen tapped the fingers of his right hand upon the back of his left, a gesture which I had learned spelled indecision.

"I wish I knew," he said at last, with a note in his voice curiously like that of a petulant child, bewildered at some puzzle he cannot solve. "But unless my experience and dramatic judgment have failed me, he is very much alive and in this country."

I looked at him with the astonishment I felt at his statement.

"Perhaps you knew," he said. "that Underwood was a clever play tinkerer whose services were much in demand."

I nodded, and he went on hurriedly:

"What but few people knew, however, was that underneath his flippancy and his indolence was concealed one of the finest dramatic minds of the country, coupled with a most unusual knowledge of the theater from its earliest exemplification down to the present day."

"I have seen his library," I said, with the remembrance of a day when Lillian had shown me her husband's room lined with bookshelves whose every inch of space was taken up with rare manuscripts and books dealing with the drama.

"If you spent any time in it you know something of what I am trying to tell you," he returned. "But something which perhaps I alone know was that he had written several dramatic fragments which in sheer beauty and originality of treatment went far beyond anything that I ever have seen. He professed to have great respect for my judgment, and he brought them to me for my criticism. I was frankly enthusiastic and would have given them a production, but he was too 'bone lazy,' as an old servant of mine used to say, ever to finish them. But just before I left for Europe on this last trip of mine there was delivered to me in a mysterious and theatrical manner, cunningly calculated to arouse my attention, the manuscript of a play purporting to be the work of a young and unknown writer. But—it is part of my training and a necessity of self-protection—to be able to recognize the touch and style of a writer once I have seen it. And I had not read many lines of the manuscript before I recognized unmistakably the hand of Harry Underwood."

*When the planets in evil mixture to disorder wander, what plagues, and what portents!—*SHAKESPEARE.

ACCORDING to the adverse angles in which two very powerful planets are found, the fortunes of this day must be heralded as critical. The finances under the square aspect of Jupiter and Luna are in a rather hazardous condition as are affairs generally, although there may be some success in transactions with corporations or in secret deals. Make changes and journeys with caution, and be careful as to accidents with machinery.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for a doubtful year as regards financial matters or advancements, although it may be of advantage to deal with close corporations or secret negotiations. Be careful as to change and travel and be wise in treating with the government and public.

A child born on this day may have a certain amount of pluck and enterprise, but may succeed best through tact, stratagem or secret intrigues.

Merely Margy, An Awfully Sweet Girl

Story by Lloyd Mayer — By John Held, Jr.

"My dear, I'm all-of-a-BIB-and-TUCKer! I ACtually AM, because I've never seen anything LIKE the way ANimals have been sort of GRAVItating to ARab since he acquired this odd fur COAT of his, my dear! I mean it's SIMply NAUseous because the other DAY, f'r instance I disCOVered him enTIREly surROUNDed by this BROOD of KITtens who inSISted on FOLlowing him ROUND, my dear, because they were FIRMly conVINCED this COAT was their MOTHer—can you BEAR it, my dear? Well, ANYways, it was honestly too FUNny because you know how sort of emBARrassed ARab gets over anything like that, my dear? Well I NEARly had hysTERics because the odd soul was PRACtically ready to BOIL over and BUTter himself with disMAY when this large-sized ALley cat sort of CAsually aPROACHED him and dePOSITed these strange KITtens who were simply MAD about Arab's COAT, my dear—can you BEAR it? Well, ANYways, I honestly WISH he would get a coat that was less sort of conSPICuous or something because I mean it is TERribly emBARrassing to go OUT with him when he is WEARing this strange garment, because I mean you sort of feel that at any MOment you will get the CREdit for being eSCORted somewheres by the DOG catcher or the PIE-eyed Piper of HAMelin or something because at any MOment he may be purSUED by a lot of strange ANimals—can you BEAR it, my dear?"

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

ON LOVE

WHEN a woman gets bored with life it is usually because she is suffering from emotional starvation; when a man grows life-weary, it is mostly because he is suffering from emotional indigestion.

A woman's happiness doesn't depend half so much on the quality of a man's virtues as on the quality of his love for her.

A man's love has not begun to wane until he stops saying, "How soon can I see you?" and begins saying, "I got here as soon as I could."

HELEN ROWLAND

It is easier to unscramble an egg than to discover what proportion of a man's "pure, unadulterated love" is pure curiosity, how much pure vanity, and how much pure love of conquest.

Nothing makes a man so happy or a woman so miserable as to be loved "sanely," reasonably—and mildly.

There is nothing like making up his mind to say "farewell, forever" to a woman, to revive a man's interest in her.

You could stimulate a man with a violent interest in kissing his OWN WIFE if you could convince him that he "ought not to;" and you could rob him of his last spark of interest in kissing Peggy Joyce or the Queen of Rumania, if you could convince him that he "OUGHT to."

There may be many reasons why Prince Carol should never be allowed to rule Rumania, but the most glaring one is that a man too weak to resist the temptation to grow that funny little mustache would never have the strength to rule any country.

* * *

Love is what makes it possible for a woman to be surrounded with fascinating men and still be "the loneliest little girl in the world!"

For the Lovelorn

By ELEANOR GALE

Peter Pan

DEAR MISS GALE:

I have entered into your department several times before, but never have I been in such a pinch as I now find myself. I have for several years, ate to be exact, been in love with a young man from a small town several hundred miles from here. He loves me, Miss Gale, and is living on the hope of making me his wife. Now, here is the catch. I have met, through flirting, I admit, a young man that rooms across the street from my home. He is very good looking and we fell in love at first sight, as it seems. He is seven years my senior and Miss Gale, before I met him he led a fast life. Now, through love and the trust that I have placed in him, he is a different young man. But, no matter who I am out with, I am always comparing them with the young man I first mentioned. When I am with No. 2 I can think of nothing but him, and then, after I have kissed and petted with him, I regret my actions, but Miss Gale, instead of staying away from him, when he calls me up I go out with him again. I know I am being false to No. 1 and I could never face him again if he knew. What shall I do, Miss Gale? Please give me some of your most precious advice. I do not go to my mother about this, for she is always thinking worse of everyone in this world. She does not believe anyone in this world is good.

PETER PAN.

You are not in love with either, my dear, or there would be no doubts in your mind. I am very sorry you let this young man make love to you, and don't blame you for regretting it afterward. Why not stop it and have no such regrets? Since you are not engaged, keep the friendship of both until you are sure of your own heart.

N. S.

DEAR MISS GALE:

I have been keeping company with a young man three years my senior and love him greatly, but, Miss Gale, there have been at least six people that have told me that he only goes with me as a second and is waiting to see how long I will continue making a fool of myself by thinking that he loves me. Miss Gale, do you really think that he would do a thing like that? He told me himself that at first he was kidding me but now he's as serious as anyone ever could be. Miss Gale, our parents don't like the idea of our going together because we are of different religion, but, Miss Gale, we promised each other that we would let nothing keep us apart and we are not going with each other's family. We also promised that if we ever tire of each other we are to let the other party know. Should I listen to what people say when he says that he loves me and when I love him better than my life. Is it true that while love seems everything in the world to a woman it is a mere pastime to a man?

Miss Gale, I won't say anything about this until I hear from you through your column as please answer me soon and if I have not obeyed all your rules let me know through your column and if you can't put my letter in your column just answer it, for I am waiting almost impatiently and heartsoreness until I find out what you think about him.

N. S.

I see no reason why you should not believe the young man, my dear. He seems to have done nothing to make you distrust him.

Blue-Eyed Blonde Boy

DEAR MISS GALE:

I have read your column for a few years and find it very interesting. I like to read the revealing heart-to-heart letters of young men and young women. The reason I am writing is to hold up my own ideals rule. I am a blonde young man in my twenty-second year and I really do not think that the blondes are so terrible and deceitful. I surely would like to meet some of these "old-fashioned girls." I am making no custody of these, but I want one with many a girl, but can only find the flapper type of girl, who cares only for a good time, a machine ride or are wild about dancing. Then the type that always raves about her latest conquest. If there are any old-fashioned girls left, will I hope the next one I meet will be one. I am strong for that good old-fashioned girl.

BLUE-EYED BLONDE BOY.

I can't think you will have much difficulty in finding the girl you seek, but you may not be looking for her in the right surroundings. She is not to be found at cabarets and road houses, you know.

Autumn Romance

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

OF summer love affairs there are countless varieties. Among the most common is the light flirtation that does not outlast the summer.

There is another type of summer friendship, however, which strikes deeper root and often outlives the season. In the autumn I begin to hear reports from these romances. And reports are still reaching me, as a rule, when winter comes.

I hope at least a few of these vacation romances may be destined to survive the storms of autumn and chill of winter and culminate in June weddings. But many of them are undeniably at a trying stage of lingering dissolution.

"Last summer," writes Kitty, "I came to the city three times, for a period of five days each time. On my second visit I met a fine young man from my home town.

"We became very friendly and went out together practically every day. Almost every time we went out, he told me how much he cared for me.

"Now that we are both home again, I see him at club dances. At each dance he tells me he cares for me, but he pays more attention to the other girls than to me.

"The other evening, when I was out with my friends and two young men, he saw us and came over to speak to me. Then he deliberately walked away and left me in order to talk to another girl. When he came back I walked away. I think that made him angry. I haven't seen him since. Please tell me what to do."

Be friendly when you see him, Kitty, but let things rest as they are. You can't force romance. Not every pleasant friendship leads to lasting love.

There are many other young men in the world. Enjoy all the new friendships fall and winter bring. Who knows? One of these may prove far more congenial than that of last summer.

Cheer up! Why be depressed in a world of brilliant autumn sunshine and charming people!

"Troubled Brown Eyes" is also haunted by a phantom of summer-time.

"Dear Miss Fairfax," she writes, "this summer on my vacation I met a young man I shall call Jack. He was devoted to me.

"He spent all his spare time with me. I grew to love him and I believe he loved me. He told me he did.

"When I came home Jack promised to write. Weeks and months have passed, but I have not heard from him. I feel sure he loves me, I sometimes feel so lonely for a glimpse of his face.

"You offer such good advice in your column, won't you please advise me about this problem?"

Dear Brown Eyes, why do you think Jack loves you? Because he told on so last summer? Men do not always pledge unchanging love when they utter the words "I love you."

Possibly some new face has intrigued Jack's fancy for the time being, however sincere he was last summer. Enjoy as much friendship as he offers, but do not take it tensely—unless it is accompanied by a proposal of marriage.

In the same mail comes another echo of last summer's romance:

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"During the summer, while I was abroad, I met a charming American, whom I was with practically every day for three consecutive months. We were engaged.

"When the day came for me to sail back to America he was not at the boat to say goodby, as he had promised. Possibly you can advise me as to what is best to do."

Have you written your fiance, telling him of your anxiety about him? Illness or an accident may have kept him from the boat. He may have lost your address.

If I were you I would write him a registered letter and arrange with the postoffice to be notified when he receives it. Try to learn his address if you haven't it.

Write sweetly, affectionately. But ask whether his silence means he wishes to be released from the engagement.

Only a small proportion of summer romances will survive the autumn. They were simply too fragile to weather storms of adversity and stand the test.

But autumn brings its own romance—sometimes more sane and sound than summer's. Fleeting friendships are not wasted if they were wholesome while they lasted. Be grateful for them and have faith that one day the finest friendship of all will deepen into love and lead to the happy marriage of you and The Man.

Fay King Speculates on Sentiment for Cards

By FAY KING.

"THE stationery department of most stores carry "Cards for All Occasions."

One need not sit and wrack his brain for the fitting word with which to congratulate a friend upon the announcement of his engagement. Or for words of sympathy and condolence. The verse makers and card designers have supplied cheerful little couplets and paragraphs of prose that express it just as it should be expressed, the proper emotion of the moment.

But there are still a few "important occasions" that they have overlooked:

How about a dainty, little verse to post upon the anniversary of a divorce. Byron composed a few smart lines for that when he wrote to his ex-wife:

"This day of all our days has done,
"The worst for me and you.
"It's just six years since we were one,
"And five since we were two."

I may be wrong about the years, but they could be left blank upon the pretty card to be filled in by the individual to fit his own case.

And how about a pretty card reminding the boss you'd like to have a raise? For instance:

"Congratulations on your taste,
"I hear my work you praise,
"But what I'd really like to hear,
"Is that I'll get a raise."

Installment collectors might wish to select pretty cards with sentiment something like this:

"The noblest words of tongue or pen,
"Are these"—we must admit,
"PLEASE REMIT!"

The doctor needs a card to send to some of his patients:

"Am pleased to hear you are not ill, but I'd be more pleased if you paid your bill!"

It seems to me there are several more cards along these lines that should be in the rack.

Feminine Beauty

By LUCY LOWELL.

APROPOS of the opinion, discussed the other day, that a woman must have beauty if she is to be happy, successful and beloved, I offer this bit of loving sweetness written by Robert Ingersoll:

"It is not necessary to be great to be happy; it is not necessary to be rich to be just and generous and to have a heart filled with divine affection. No matter whether you are rich or poor, treat your wife as though she were a splendid flower, and she will fill your life with perfume and with joy.

"And, do you know, it is a splendid thing to think that the woman you really love will never grow old to you. Through the wrinkles of time, through the mask of years, if you really love her, you will always see the face you have loved and won.

"And a woman that really loves a man does not see that he grows old; he is not decrepit to her; he does not tremble; he is not old; she always sees the same gallant gentleman who won her hand and heart.

"I like to think of it in that way; I like to think that love is eternal. And to love in that way and then go down the hill of life together, and as you go down, hear, perhaps, the laughter of grandchildren, while the birds of love and joy sing once more in the leafless branches of the tree of age."

This, so masterfully written, sets forth, it seems to me, everything the average woman would consider happiness and success and love.

To be considered beautiful even after her hair had lost its sheen and her face its smooth glow, because she loved kindly and truly and unselfishly, and to be loved as she loved—this would be the thing she must have to make her life complete.

Indeed there is that more essential to a woman than beauty. It is love.

Cataract—Surgery Defeats One Form of Blindness

OF ALL the serious ailments the most satisfactory, if you must have one of them is cataract.

DR COPELAND

This is a condition caused by loss of transparency of the lens of the eye. In consequence, objects are not defined and, after a time, blindness results. Light can be seen, but that is all.

You must not regard cataract as something growing over the outside of the eye, a "film," as that trouble is sometimes called.

As a matter of fact, the lens of the eye is in the interior of the organ back of the colored part.

The "pupil" appears to be a black spot in the middle of the colored portion of the eye. In reality it is a hole in that part. The only view we can possibly have of the lens is the small front area seen through the pupil.

The normal lens is perfectly transparent, like one of the clear lenses of a pair of spectacles. In cataract, the lens becomes milky. It cannot be seen through any more than ground glass can be.

Cataract is essentially a disease of old age. That is, it rarely appears before the age of 60. It is not unknown, even in the thirties, but it is unusual for it to attack the young.

Because it is a trouble met in old age, it is not uncommon to hear it spoken of as "senile cataract." Sometimes a baby is born with a rare disease, "congenital cataract" or "infantile cataract." Cataract of the new born is entirely different from acquired cataract. Indeed, it is so seldom met that we may disregard it.

It is difficult to explain why an occasional adult has senile cataract. Rarely can it be traced to an injury. Some have thought that an excessive quantity of lime taken into the system with the drinking water may have something to do with the development of cataract.

We need not speculate on the origin of cataract. That is a problem for the future. The scientists must puzzle over it.

The first sign of the trouble lies in the fact that there is dimness of vision in the affected eye. It acts as if the spectacle lens were cloudy and dirty.

The dimness gradually increases. It will take months and may require years for the cataract to develop fully. When it does it is said to be "ripe."

The remedy lies in a delicate but painless operation. Cocaine is used to deaden the feeling. A tiny knife opens the eyeball and the opaque lens is slipped out, "extracted," the doctors call it.

After a few days in bed, not because of pain or illness, but to keep the body and eye quiet, the bandages are removed. Then a thick spectacle lens is fitted and the blind eye has been happily restored to sight.

Answers to Health Queries

P. L.—Q. What do you advise for constipation?

A. This trouble may be easily overcome by proper dieting. You should eat simple, well-cooked food, avoiding the ones unduly rich in fats and starches. Exercise is essential. For full information send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Swansdown Flavor is Always Uniform

SCIENTIFIC methods determine in advance SWANSDOWN'S uniformity fragrant bouquet and rich abundant flavor.

The four fine grades of coffee beans used in SWANSDOWN are first washed; then all broken, "crippled" beans are floated off so that the mellow, full-bodied flavor remains unimpaired.

The selected berries are then blended into one fixed, secret formula which produces a smooth, delicious coffee of perfectly balanced qualities.

SWANSDOWN is then ready to be served in your home. A meal is only as good as its coffee.

End Fat

The way is now easy and pleasant

Anybody who suffers from excess fat should learn what modern science offers. Don't starve, don't over-exercise. Combat the real cause. Supply your system with that which turns food into fuel and energy rather than into fat.

Modern research discovered that way some two decades ago. It was then embodied in Marmola prescription tablets. People have used them for 20 years—millions of boxes of them. Today the results are seen and told everywhere. Most people are slender. All modern styles are adapted to them. They have supplied their systems with the natural factors which prevent the formation of fat.

Users of Marmola do not attempt abnormal exercise or diet, though moderation helps. They simply take four tablets daily until weight comes down to normal. New vivacity, new health comes at the same time.

The methods are not secret. Each box of Marmola contains the formula and the reasons for results. You know what you are taking, and the scientific reasons for the benefits which come.

Start Marmola now. You cannot afford to stay fat. Beauty, health and fitness require normal weight. Watch the results for a month, and they will delight you. Then tell the facts to others. Why wait another day?

Marmola prescription tablets are sold by all druggists at $1 per box. If your druggist is out, he will get them at once from his jobber.

Legs Too Bare

JEAN BARRY

Purity, as recognized by the American Purity League, has invaded London. As Jean Barry and Jack Holland danced through one of their numbers in "The Girl from Cooks," at a London theater last night, a man, supposedly American, rose in his seat and shouted, "I protest against this dance in the name of the American Purity League. It is a barbaric, disgraceful exhibition." Miss Barry wore no hose and it was to this the purist objected. Leaving the theater he withheld his name but said he belonged to the London branch of the league, which was starting a world campaign against bare legs on the stage.

PLAN REPORTS OF PALESTINE APPEAL

First reports on the progress of the $150,000 drive of the United Palestine Appeal will be made tomorrow night at a meeting of the men and women workers in the auditorium of the Young Men and Women's Hebrew Association, Bellefield avenue. The object of the drive is to rehabilitate the Jewish homeland.

The various team leaders and committeemen will be the ones to report on the progress of their individual groups. The drive began last Monday and will be continued until December 4. The speakers at tomorrow night's meeting will be Mrs. Raymond Kaufmann, Abe Oseroff and Rabbi Herman Haliperin of the Tree of Life Synagogue.

The $150,000 to be raised in the Pittsburgh district, comprising Western Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Eastern Ohio, is part of the $7,500,000 nation-wide campaign. Meetings will be held several times a week while the campaign is on.

BLAST TOLL IS RAISED TO 28

The fatality list of the Equitable gas tank explosion in the Manchester district 10 days ago was raised to 28 with the death of David Marshall, 57, 1252 Ridge avenue, in the Presbyterian Hospital Wednesday night. Owing to the wrecked condition of his home the funeral services will be held tomorrow in the home of his brother-in-law, T. D. Miller, 1413 Chateau street.

Marshall, who was employed in a South Side warehouse, did not go to work the morning of the explosion, being confined to his home with a carbuncle on the back of his neck. He was in bed at the time of the explosion and was almost buried under falling plaster and debris. He was taken to the hospital the next day. He leaves a widow, Mrs. Anna McCabe Marshall.

FINE "ROMANTIC HATTIE"

Hattie Pernatt, who as correspondent in many romances started through matrimonial advertisements, died, it was reported. In Federal Court, Mrs. Frank Hazlett, 44, Oil City, pleaded guilty to using the mails in a scheme to defraud, was fined $100 and paroled for two years.

Postal inspectors testified Mrs. Hazlett under the name of Hattie Pernatt, obtained money from numerous suitors for transportation and other expenses incident to a wedding. Then "Bessie Germer" would write letters saying Hattie was sick, to be followed later with a notice of the death of Hattie.

MACFADDEN HONORED BY HOUSE OF COMMONS

LONDON, Nov. 25.—Bernarr Macfadden, publisher of American magazines and newspapers, urged world peace at a dinner given for him Wednesday night at the House of Commons by Sir Nicholas Grattan-Doyle of Newcastle-on-Tyne. The guests included members of Parliament and other notables. Mr. Macfadden urged a ministry of athletics in England just as in Germany. He said: "Every boy and girl should indulge in some sort of athletics, such as running, wrestling, boxing and swimming. Thus your people could not only retain their athletic ability to 25 or 30, but to middle age, and even far beyond that period."

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Jack Vandervort Hurd to Wed Mrs. Caroline McCord Butterfield During Christmas Holidays

FROM Battle Creek, Mich., has come an announcement of an engagement interesting to Pittsburghers, John William Bailey, of that place, having made known the betrothal of Mrs. Caroline McCord Butterfield, of New York and Pinehurst, N. C., to Jack Vandervort Hurd, of Pittsburgh. Mr. Hurd makes his home in the Schenley apartments and also spends a great deal of time at Pinehurst, where the wedding is expected to take place during the Christmas holidays. He has one son, Sigourney Hurd, who is a student at Shady Side Academy.

Mrs. Butterfield is a daughter of the late Joseph W. McCord, of Columbus, O. She has four daughters, Mrs. Caroline Butterfield Allen, of Grand Rapids, Mich.; Laura Butterfield, who is now traveling in Europe; Julia Scott Butterfield, a student at Vassar College, and Helen Butterfield, who attends the Hartridge School at Plainfield, N. J.

Thanksgiving was a notable day for the social world for, in addition to the usual festivities of the holiday, it was the date selected for one of the important "coming out" parties of the season, Mary Mellon McClung, debutante daughter of the junior Samuel Alfred McClungs of Murrayhill avenue, made her bow yesterday afternoon to the social world at a tea dance in the Pittsburgh Golf Club. This is one of the first of the debutante tea-dances of the season.

The debbie and her mother received in the ballroom of the clubhouse, which was transformed with bankings of cibotium ferns and palms. An exquisite two-piece frock of beige georgette, interwoven with gold, fashioned with a circular skirt and trimmed with a rhinestone tie was worn by the debutante. Mrs. McClung wore a gown of black crepe, relieved by colorful embroidery. The debutante carried different gift bouquets during the afternoon.

Quite autumnal in its decoration was the tea table, centered with bowls of fruit and vases of yellow Pernet roses.

Mrs. McClung had a long list of aides, all prominent in the social life of the city. The list included Mrs. Richard Beatty Mellon, Mrs. Thomas A. Mellon, Mrs. John F. Walton, Jr., Mrs. Reuben Miller, Miss Eleanor Watson, Miss Elizabeth Mellon, Mrs. Alan S. Evans, Mrs. J. J. Brooks, Mrs. C. C. Sandels, Mrs. W. B. Trainer, Mrs. George Greer Coolidge, Mrs. J. King Scott, Mrs. John Hartwell Hillman, Mrs. Andrew Bart Berger, Mrs. Roy Arthur Hunt, Mrs. Amelia Johnston, Mrs. George Singer Ibberts, Mrs. A. M. Speer, Mrs. Richard H. Hawkins, Mrs. W. Terrell Johnson, Mrs. J. Merrill Wright, Mrs. F. A. Hamilton, Mrs. F. F. Guthrie, Mrs. William McK. Reed, Mrs. Hugh Rodman, Mrs. W. S. Moorhead and Mrs. Eugene Messler.

The bud had as her aides both sister debutantes and several friends. Assisting her were Eleanor Evans, Anne King Scott, Anne Louise Marshall, Juliet Lea Hillman, Mary Childs, Marjorie Babcock, Jane Foster, Mary Louise Johnson, Florence Carool, Elizabeth George, Harriet Ramsburg, Margaret McCready, Margaret Brainard, Katherine Gordon and Kathleen Guthrie.

Following the tea-dance Mrs. McClung entertained the debutantes and other aides at a supper.

Mary is too much feted this season. Among the entertainments to be given for her is a dinner dance Mrs. Reuben Miller of the Schenley apartments will give in the Pittsburgh Golf Club, December 2. Juliet Hillman and Anne King Scott share honors with Mary.

ON BALL COMMITTEE

Miss Catherine Suydam is chairman of the cigaret committee for the Cinderella ball to be held tonight in the University Club by the dispensary board of St. Margaret's Hospital.

MISS CATHERINE SUYDAM

The eve of a holiday is usually valued every bit as much as the holiday itself. This Thanksgiving eve was no exception, since Wednesday night was marked by a notable event. Richard King Mellon, son of the Richard Beatty Mellons, entertained the various hunts of this section and representatives of other units in the East at a dance in the marquee erected by the Mellons for the ceremonies attending the wedding of their daughter, Sarah.

Following the usual Thanksgiving hunt of Sewickleyans yesterday, the William Bacon Schillers entertained at a breakfast in their Sewickley Heights home.

Mrs. Galen C. Hartman, of the conservative society set and a member of the Pittsburgh Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, will be assisted in receiving her guests at a tea she will give December 6 in the Twentieth Century Club by Mrs. George Herbert Muckley, of Washington, D. C.; Mrs. Harold Boyd Hershman and Mrs. Lowell Briggs Page, of Detroit. Mrs. Page, you will remember, of course, was Martha Close before her marriage.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Levaur, of Bartlett street, yesterday announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Beatrice Levaur, to Gilbert Bilenkin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bilenkin, of Dayton, O. Miss Levaur is a graduate of the University of Pittsburgh and Mr. Bilenkin attended the University of Illinois.

A group of recent college graduates is arranging to hold the intercollegiate Christmas ball this year on December 26, in the William Penn Hotel, for all students and college alumni. The dance will take the form of a student carnival, college scenes and customs forming the basis of the entertainment planned.

Obtaining a brief respite from social activities and duties of the city are a number of Pittsburgh folk who have been making a brief sojourn in New York. Mrs. Donald C. Bakewell, of Sewickley, and Mrs. James B. Laughlin, of Devonshire street, went to Gotham early in the week.

* * *

Mrs. William G. Hawkins, Jr., and her daughter, Beatrice, have also been attracted to New York.

Mrs. Charles W. Goodnough, Jr., of Carolyn avenue, Bellevue, entertained last night when announcement was made of the engagement of her sister, Miss Florence Early Webb, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Webb, of North Jackson street, Bellevue, to William McConnell Walker, of Kittanning, son of J. Scott Walker, of Walkers Mills, Pa. Miss Webb is a graduate of Slippery Rock State Normal School and Mr. Walker is a University of Pittsburgh man.

Yesterday morning in the chapel of the Holy Ghost at Duquesne University, the marriage of Miss Josephine Cole, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nellis D. Cole, of Meade street, and Paul R. Butler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Butler, was solemnized. The bride wore coral velvet and satin with hat to match, and carried a colonial bouquet. Her maid of honor, Miss Katherine Butler, sister of the bridegroom, appeared in yellow velvet and satin with hat to correspond, and also carried a colonial bouquet. Melvin A. Butler was his brother's best man and the ushers included Charles V. O'Conner, William J. McGurgan, John P. Monaghan and Paul G. Sullivan. Richard Koch, cousin of the bride and a member of the Metropolitan Grand Opera Company, sang. A breakfast in the Garden Tearoom followed the ceremony, and since the day was also the thirtieth anniversary of the wedding of the bridegroom's parents, a celebration was held during the afternoon and evening in the Butler home. After an Eastern trip, Mr. Butler and his bride will be at home in Homewood avenue. Mr. Butler is a senior in the school of law of Duquesne University.

The engagement of Miss Esther Virginia Beeh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Beeh, of Cutler street, North Side, to Wallace R. Brocker, son of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Brocker, of Park boulevard, Dormont, was announced last Saturday at a luncheon given by Miss Beeh's sister, Mrs. Ernest Kraepel, of Overlook street, North Side. No wedding date has been set.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Lynn R. Ramsey, of Flemington street, Squirrel Hill, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Annette Bryce Ramsey, and Ralph B. Boltman, of Omaha, Neb., which was solemnized last Saturday night in the Ramsey home by the Rev. Dr. C. Wallace Petty, pastor of the First Baptist Church.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Choffat, of Ivy street, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Margaret Josephine Choffat, and Frank C. Fisher, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank D. Fisher, of Bigelow boulevard, which was solemnized yesterday morning. Miss Katherine A. Choffat, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and Lloyd C. Fisher was his brother's best man. After a short western trip, Mr. and Mrs. Fisher will be at home in Ivy street.

* * *

The marriage of Miss Ethel L. Kramer, daughter of Mrs. Annie L. Kramer, of Lelia street, Mt. Washington, and Howard W. Stuckeman, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Stuckeman, also of Mt. Washington, was solemnized Wednesday at 5:30 o'clock in the Kramer home by the Rev. Adolf Ebert, of Zion Evangelical Church. Mrs. Joseph Harkins was matron of honor and Miss June Trexler, of Allentown, Ga., maid of honor. The flower girl was Dorothy Leinweber, cousin of the bride; David G. Hood was best man and Joseph Harkins, usher. Mr. and Mrs. Stuckeman will be at home after December 1 in Connellsville.

FEMALE COLLEGE ASS'N WILL MEET ON MONDAY

The visits of Mrs. Walter R. Close to the Pittsburgh Female College Association have come to be annual affairs and a season without her would doubtless seem incomplete to the members. Next Monday afternoon in the College Club Mrs. Close will read for the association and Mrs. Elmer W. Flaccus will give contralto solos, accompanied by Mrs. W. D. James. Mrs. Charles W. Roberts will serve as chairman of the hostesses, who will include Mrs. George L. Follansbee, Mrs. John M. Roberts, Mrs. Robert J. Bailey, Mrs. Charles H. Clifford, Mrs. George E. Chester, Mrs. Edmund E. Dandridge, Mrs. W. D. Stevenson and Mrs. W. D. James.

Under auspices of the Home Missionary Society of the Brushton Methodist Church, Mrs. Sarah Earnest Snyder will speak on "America, Herald of Christ's Kingdom," on Sunday night.

* * *

The Alliance Francaise will hear its first lecture of the season tonight in the Twentieth Century Club when Raymond Lange, of the Paris L'Intransigeant and a chevalier in the Legion of Honor, will speak on "Paris, as She Is Known in Foreign Countries," and "French Family Life." More than 40 new members have been received into the alliance since the season opened.

* * *

A bazar and mock turkey supper will be held by the Ladies' Aid Society of the Hazelwood Presbyterian Church next Wednesday night in the church rooms. Mrs. Agnes Boilens is chairman.

The international art exhibit was the study subject this afternoon at the meeting of the Turtle Creek Woman's Club in the Y. W. C. A. Building. Mrs. W. A. Rodgers took charge of a general discussion. Miss Jane Holliday talked of the prize pictures and Mrs. John Eyler had a paper concerning the artists. Mrs. G. E. Fisher was hostess for the social hour.

Case Ward Whitney, baritone; Elford Caughey, harp; Charles Riley, violin; Charles Curry, cello, and Oscar Helfenbein, piano, under the direction of Victor Saudek, furnished the program for the Pittsburgh Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution at the meeting in the Hotel Schenley this afternoon.

Miss Sarah Soffel discussed international relations before the Edgewood Woman's Club Wednesday afternoon. The program included vocal solos by Miss Harriet Gillender to her own accompaniments.

The Tuesday Musical Club will give a luncheon in Memorial Hall preceding the regular concert Tuesday afternoon. At the luncheon will be announced the returns of pledges already received for the clubhouse, which is to be the Tuesday Musical Club Memorial to Stephen C. Foster. The luncheon will be from 12 until 1 o'clock, the study class will convene at 1 and the choral program will be given at the usual hour.

* * *

The Ladies' Missionary Society of the Italian Presbyterian Church, Larimer avenue and Mayflower street, East Liberty, will have a hat social and bazar Tuesday evening.

* * *

More than 100 pounds of candy have been made by the women themselves for the benefit which the social, hospitality and house committees of the Congress of Clubs will give tomorrow in the clubhouse. The affair has the distinction of being sponsored by 100 affiliated clubs, each one of which has taken a table for cards. In addition to cards and the candy sale there will be a sale of baked goods.

INSTANT CLEANSING LATHER leaps from this soap .....even in cold water

COLD WATER deadens the lather of most soaps. But that's not true of Octagon Toilet Soap. This glistening white soap leaps to lather instantly, even when the water is cold. There's proof for you that Octagon is the freest-lathering—quickest-cleansing soap you can buy for use in the warm water you use daily. Octagon's rich cocoanut oil content makes this soap lather fast. It cleans fast, too, in any water. It removes every trace of soil—yet it is kind to tender skins. The long-lasting, large-size Octagon cake costs only ten cents. You'll like to use it for its lather-cleansing qualities—its fresh whiteness—its delicate scent. And you'll like the premiums you can get with Octagon coupons. You'll find a coupon on the wrapper of each cake of Octagon Toilet Soap.

About expert gasoline tests -and others

EVERY now and then you hear or read about some unusual record made, under specially arranged test, with such-and-such gasoline.

Atlantic, for various researches and studies of motor fuels, has made many itself.

For example, a specific test was made at the request of a distributor for a well-known make of car. This car actually ran 55.8 miles on one gallon of Atlantic Gasoline.

Yet Atlantic would not think of using such tests as a gasoline-selling argument to the general public.

There is nothing conclusive about them. They are misleading from the standpoint of general practice.

. . . Cars, roads and driving skill differ. . . . Motors vary as to age and condition. . . . No two carburetors or timing mechanisms are exactly alike. . . . Valves and ignition systems are in varying states of efficiency. . . . Weather conditions are not always ideal.

All these things have to be taken into consideration when refining gasoline to meet the every-day requirements of the thousands of cars which throng the highways.

Only one kind of test can demonstrate how thoroughly those requirements are met: All-round performance.

Atlantic is one gasoline which, without question, has all the qualities the majority of motors require and the majority of road, load, speed and temperature conditions demand.

No more carefully balanced gasoline exists. No one quality is overemphasized at the sacrifice of others.

No other gasoline—regardless of price—can give you easier starting, more ready acceleration, smoother combustion, more power and mileage—and give them to you with more dependable uniformity always.

The proof of these things is in the record of satisfaction Atlantic Gasoline has given the motoring public over a long period.

. . . During the past five years more than half the gasoline sold in Pennsylvania, according to official tax returns, came from the Atlantic refineries at Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Franklin.

1 DEAD, 4 HURT AS CAR HITS TROLLEY

Thomas P. Westerman, 40, of 662 Fourth street, Oakmont, was killed and four others were injured when their automobile crashed into a street car yesterday on Guyasuta hill, Sharpsburg.

Ray Zahner, 22, 927 Linn avenue, Turtle Creek, driver of the car, who is in St. Francis Hospital suffering from internal injuries, told hospital attaches that the rain on his windshield prevented him from seeing the car. Mrs. Edith Zahner, 29, and Miss Nancy Williams of Center street, Verona, were taken to St. Margaret's Hospital suffering from bruises and cuts.

James Novak, 18, of 407 Jillson street, Brookline, was arrested yesterday by Wilkinsburg police after his automobile crashed into a pole at Wilkins and State streets. Police say Novak fled after the accident. The car bears Ohio license plates and police are holding Novak until they communicate with Ohio authorities.

UNVEIL STATUE TO BRASHEAR

In the presence of a group of scientists and educators, a bronze statue of John A. Brashear, the work of Frank Vittor, local sculptor, was unveiled yesterday morning at the Allegheny Observatory, Riverview Park, North Side. The statue, life size, was placed directly over the crypt in which the ashes of Dr. Brashear and his wife are preserved. Dr. W. J. Holland, former chancellor of the University of Pittsburgh, delivered the address. Benjamin Thaw was chairman of the observatory committee.

DEATH ROLL

Mrs. Anna Lee Bingaman.

Mrs. Anna Lee Bingaman, 56, wife of W. L. Bingaman, died on Wednesday night in the family residence, 1720 Miriam street, Swissvale, following an illness of less than a week. She was stricken with pneumonia while attending her husband, who was suffering with the same disease. Mr. Bingaman now is convalescing, but will not be able to go to Dayton, O., where the body will be taken tomorrow and placed temporarily in a receiving vault. Besides her husband, Mrs. Bingaman leaves a daughter, Mrs. Louise Herman, wife of Maj. Harrison Herman of the United States Army, who is stationed at Fort Leavenworth, Kan. Mrs. Herman will not attend the funeral of her mother in Dayton because she was severely injured in an automobile accident several weeks ago. Mrs. Bingaman was born at Wapakonetta, O., and located in Swissvale about two years ago.

Mrs. Rachel R. Rowan.

Mrs. Rachael Reed Rowan, 80, wife of the late Josiah Dodds Rowan, former resident of Parnassus, died at Yakima, Wash., yesterday after a short illness.

Mrs. Rowan was the daughter of the late John and Martha Reed, pioneers of Lower Burrell township, Westmoreland county. She was a life-long member of the Reformed Presbyterian Church of Parnassus, and leaves seven sons, B. R. Rowan, of Parnassus; Frank Rowan, of Youngstown, O.; Edward and Russell Rowan, of Seattle, Wash.; Charles, Jay and Wilbur Rowan, of Sunnyside, Wash.; three daughters, Mrs. R. H. Brown, Mrs. Agnes Wilcox and Mrs. Pearl Moser, all of Yakima, Wash.

William A. Schwartz.

William A. Schwartz, 49, of 44 Millbridge street, a veteran of the police department, died yesterday in South Side Hospital. He was born in Butler and joined the police force January 28, 1907. He was attached to the South Side district. He was a member of the Fraternal Order of Police and the Fraternal Patriotic Association. He leaves three brothers, George, Benjamin and Maxwell Schwartz, and two sisters, Mrs. Anna Harland and Mrs. Emma Binstock.

Colonel U. Grant Green.

Col. U. Grant Green, Civil War veteran and for 17 years employed at the East Pittsburgh plant of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, died yesterday at the home of his sister, Mrs. Nellie Donaldson, 1125 Wallace avenue, Wilkinsburg. He was a member of Lebanon Lodge No. 7, F. & A. M.; Naval Chapter No. 6 and Columbia Lodge of Perfection. He leaves his sister and a brother, William Green of Altoona.

Mrs. Charles Peterson.

Mrs. Ida Wilhelmina Peterson, 79, widow of Charles Peterson, a resident of Pittsburgh 46 years, died Wednesday in her home, 1018 Blackadore avenue. Mrs. Peterson was born in Sweden and came to America, settling in Pittsburgh in 1881. Her husband died 12 years ago. Mrs. Peterson was one of the oldest members of the Swedish German Evangelical Lutheran Church, Friendship avenue and Evaline street. She leaves eight children and 23 grandchildren.

Healthy at 96 Says Liquor Did It

By Universal Service

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—"I've had my liquor all my life, and that's why I'm so healthy," declared James Coffey when he arrived here from County Kerry, Ireland, to spend his remaining days with his son. He is 96.

Doctors who examined him at Ellis Island declared him to be the most physically perfect man for his age they had ever seen, according to Mr. Coffey.

CHICAGO POLICE SHOOT STUDENT AS TIRE THIEF

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—Harold Hess, 19, student at the Chicago Dental College, was shot in the head and probably fatally wounded by police when he and a fellow student were caught, apparently in the act of stripping tires from an automobile.

Doctors call it "cachexia" that ill health and malnutrition commonly called "run-down condition"

When cachexia, as frequently happens, is due entirely to the absence of a certain vital dietary factor, yeast is the food to eat. In all such cases, yeast quickens the appetite, improves the digestion and enables you to get strength, energy and endurance from the food you eat.

Yeast is far-famed as a tonic, regulator and general conditioner. And now, in Yeast Foam Tablets, you can get pure yeast in a form you'll like. Easy to swallow, pleasant to chew like candy. Try them just once, and you'll see.

In handy packets for 5c or 10c for the large 10 day bottle at drug stores.

Eat Yeast Foam Tablets for cachexia (run-down condition). Loss of appetite. Indigestion. Constipation. Boils—Pimples.

R. R. FIREMEN AWAIT RULE IN WAGE FIGHT

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—(AP.)—Thirty thousand firemen on western railroads await an arbitration board decision to see whether their pay checks will be increased by $1 a day.

After the 55 systems, comprising the Association of Western Railroads, had refused the request of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen for the increase, the plea went to a federal arbitration board, which completed a hearing in Chicago, November 11. A decision is looked for November 28, when the board reassembles at Denver.

Both sides cited changed economic conditions in presenting their arguments. The roads claimed the firemen were adequately paid, and that the carriers were not able to add to their payrolls annually the $7,500,000 to $10,000,000 necessary to meet the increase asked.

Shrinking agricultural markets and rising overhead costs, officials of the carriers asserted, have combined to make it difficult to keep large transportation systems earning a fair return on the capital investment.

A number of firemen testified that promotion to engineer was slow and their wages insufficient to maintain the accepted standard of living. They contended that heavier engines made heavier trains and fewer of them, reducing the number of engineers required and therefore the number of possibilities for promotion.

Donald R. Richberg, counsel for the union, assailed statements of earnings and investments submitted to the Interstate Commerce Commission by the roads. He declared the final value placed on the 55 roads by the Interstate Commerce Commission was some $2,000,000,000 less than the value entered by the roads.

It was argued by the carriers' officials that the West cannot bear increased rail rates, which, they said, must inevitably follow if the firemen are given more money.

The average yearly wage of firemen on western lines was shown in figures submitted by the carriers as $2,200. Figures of the firemen tended to show their yearly earnings to average less than $2,000.

What a difference 11c made!

A local lady bought two geraniums—young plants from the same nursery. Four months later she sent us this picture showing that the plant on which she used Plantabbs had grown large and healthy, while the other was stunted and drooping.

Plantabbs always make geraniums, ferns, begonias and other potted plants grow better. This is true even during winter months, when most folks are complaining that their plants are withering and drooping because of the harmful effects of furnace heat.

Try Plantabbs. Odorless, inexpensive, easy to use, they're life-savers for indoor plants and flowers.

Valuable Book FREE!

A 32-page book, profusely illustrated and containing a wealth of valuable information, has just been prepared for users of Plantabbs. In it, Mr. F. F. Rockwell, nationally famous authority, tells how to keep your potted plants and flowers from withering and turning brown in winter, how and when to water, when to repot, how to take cuttings, how to fertilize, what to do when insect pests attack, and a hundred-and-one other helpful hints.

You can get this remarkable new book by purchasing from your florist, druggist or seed dealer, one 25c package or two 25c packages of Plantabbs. When you reach home, empty the tablets into another container and mail the empty carton to us. Mr. Rockwell's book will be sent to you immediately without any cost to you whatever. The Doctor's Verdict

This case is critical. These colds are always dangerous and should never be neglected.

Doctors recommend hot Bulgarian Herb (Blood) Tea to break up a cold quickly, because it beats up tired, chilled blood stream, increases blood circulation, and purges dangerous germs from the system.

Be sure to ask your druggist for the genuine Bulgarian Herb (Blood) Tea in the red and yellow box. 35c-Tic.

PRESIDENTS-MOUNTAINEERS BATTLE TO TIE

WASH-JEFF NARROWLY ESCAPES DEFEAT

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Nov. 25.—The West Virginia University Mountaineers, in their final game of the 1927 season, rose to supreme heights yesterday in holding the Washington and Jefferson Presidents to a 6-6 tie, before a 15,000 audience, and in a spectacular game played on a muddy field.

Amos scored the touchdown for the visitors early in the fourth period, and soon afterward the Mountaineers retaliated with one by Hardy. Both teams failed to annex the extra point.

W. & J. clearly outrushed the Mountaineers, getting several long advances into the dangerous zone, but a superb defense rolled back the crushing Presidents, and on another occasion an intercepted pass favored the West Virginia team. West Virginia had the ball on the three-yard line as the game ended. The lineup:

West Virginia—6		W. & J.—6
Morris	L. E.	Herriott
Nixon	L. T.	Doutt
Hance	L. G.	(C) Fouty
Latham (C)	C.	Aschman

Score by quarters—

West Virginia	0	0	0	6	—6
W. & J.	0	0	0	6	—6

Substitutions—Brewster for Lewis, Yackanas for Morris, Scott for G. Nixon, Hardy for Keefer. Touchdowns—Hardy, Amos. Referee—J. C. Durfee, Williams.

There were two reasons for the crushing defeat of the Bendekians. One was the clever scouting of the Pitt men assigned to that task, and the other was the keen play of the local athletes, who fought as if inspired with the knowledge that they could not afford to lose if they wanted to make sure of that trip to the coast to play Pop Warner's Leland Stanford team.

THE Pitt team was coached to look for every play State attempted, and had no trouble squelching its attempts to advance the ball. The ends and tackles kept the State ends and backs from going down the field to receive passes and smashed the running attack in its inception. From end to end, the Pitt line outplayed the high-standing State forwards, and there was no comparison between the backfields. Welch and Hagan stood out over the field, the former more than clinching his right to all-America honors and the latter being not far behind in brilliance, with the dependable Dick Booth also starring in his specialties, and Fisher, the quarterback, doing yeoman work in the interference. Virtually every man on the Pitt team starred, while not a single State player was in the limelight, unless it was Roepke in stark failure, and Joe Miller, the former Wilkinsburg High School player, in being thrown for a safety on an end run from the nine-yard line for the first score of the game.

GLENN (POP) WARNER, former Pitt coach, who was in the press box to scout Pitt, and thereby tipped the mitt that Pitt already had been definitely decided upon to oppose Stanford in the Roses game, summed up the battle completely when he said the men of Sutherland were a "darned good team." He likely went away from there feeling in his bones that the Panthers would be plenty good enough to whip his Cardinals on January 2, provided they do not get fouled by the change of climate in California, for prior to the game he had confided to some friends that his own team was not so very good, although it had come through beautifully in some important contests during the regular season. Warner liked the smoothness and precision with which the Pitt plays were run off, and now and then grunted significantly as State summed up its plays against the stout defense of the Panthers.

SOME idea of how well Pitt monopolized possession of the ball may be gained from a review of its marches. Late in the first quarter it got the ball on a punt in midfield and in three plays carried it to the 15-yard line. Here a loss caused the Panthers to try for a field goal, which failed. On the kickoff following the safety early in the second period, Pitt ran the ball back to its own 45-yard line and from this point made a touchdown in eight plays. Late in the period, Welch pulled a clever reverse after catching a punt and ran back to the State 47-yard line. Five plays advanced the ball to the six-yard line, when the call of time prevented another tally.

Early in the third quarter, Pitt started from its own 35-yard line after receiving a punt and rambled to the State 16-yard line in seven plays and then again tried for a field goal. Shortly afterward it got a "break" when State had a bad kick go out of bounds on its own 40-yard line. Eight plays sufficed to net a touchdown this time. Pitt recovered State's fumble on its own 41-yard line to begin the fourth quarter and in seven plays went 59 yards for its third touchdown and a little later marched 57 yards in 15 plays for the final tally.

A REAL team? A steam-roller? A hot aggregation, this Pitt outfit? Yea, bo, you said it! And the real champion of the East, what with Wash-Jeff's 6-6 tie with West Virginia to climax the season.

SPORT COMMENT

year after year—the Panther forwards outplayed their opponents at every stage of the game, made runs and bucks by their own backs easily possible, and swept down the field under kicks with a speed that you don't see in that department of many college teams.

AS FOR the defensive ability of the Pitt line, the fact that State had only one forward pass to its credit when the end of the game was drawing near is sufficient attest. Roepke and the other best bets on the State offensive never were able to get away to a fair start toward a big gain.

YESTERDAY'S win marks the sixth time in succession that Pitt has defeated Penn State in their annual Turkey Day gridiron meeting. Moreover it is the second time in a decade and a half that the Panthers have won six in a row.

DO YOU know how many times the Nittany Lions have defeated Pitt in the last 15 years? Just once. That lone victory and two ties represent all that Penn State can show for the last 15 years of competition in football with the local university. Meanwhile the Blue and Gold has registered 12 victories.

It takes a spirit like Penn State's to keep going in the face of so many disappointments. The poor record against Pitt is largely the cause of the clamoring that is heard at intervals in some Blue and White quarters for a new coach to succeed Hugo Bezdek. The latter's 10-year contract, by the way, still has six years to run.

EVEN though little rain came out of the darkened and threatening skies of yesterday morning, and a liberal scattering of straw on the gridiron gave the Panthers and Lions a fairly good footing, the indications during the forenoon that a downpour might force the teams to play in a swamp, thus ruining the game for players and spectators alike, suggest that Pitt is behind the times in not having a field cover, such as is used to protect baseball diamonds.

Football field covers were introduced only a few years ago, and Howard Ehmke, the Philadelphia American League pitcher, was the sales agent for the first firm to manufacture them. But now several companies are turning them out.

THEY have proved so successful that practically all the big stadiums in this country use them. They are made in four parts and keep the field in fine shape for a game after a heavy rain.

Pittsburgh alumni of Ohio State University who attended the game between Ohio State and Illinois in Columbus last Saturday, report that a rain shield provided a perfect field for the contest after hard rains the night before and on the same day.

It looks as if Pitt is lagging behind the procession in this respect, and it is to be hoped that before another season arrives a rain cover will be obtained for the stadium.

DUNDEE

to box again shortly and is matched with Joe Simonich at the Arena in Philadelphia, December 5, and will come here the following Monday night, December 12, his manager, Max Waxman of Baltimore advised Matchmaker Johnny Ray of the Motor Square Club this morning.

The winner of the Saylor-Harmon match would be the logical choice as an opponent for Dundee and this is the match Ray has in mind. The promise of such a session should prove quite an incentive for Saylor and Harmon and their battle ought to prove a lively one for the fans.

Sandy Seifert, North Side heavyweight, appears in the 10-round semi-final to the Paulino Uzcudun-Johnny Risko bout in Madison Square Garden, New York, tonight, against Jack Gross, Philadelphia southpaw sensation. Mickey Walker, middleweight champion, boxes Paul Berlenbach, former light-heavyweight king, in Chicago, where Mickey recently knocked out Mike McTigue, also a former light-heavyweight champion, in one round. Yale Okan boxes Harold Mays in another 10-rounder on the Paulino-Risko card.

WARNER

logue, and this is what the "Old Man" said:

"They certainly are well-built boys (as the Panthers first came onto the field). Trim, everyone of them."

LIKES PITT'S PASSING.

"That forward pass attack certainly is sound. Jock has it designed so that the danger of having passes intercepted is reduced to a minimum. I like those short, flat ones over the center of the line. You can't have a pass defense like Pitt's unless you have brains both in the line and in the backfield.

"I like that line. Those boys are stopping most of the running plays with only six men up there.

"That team (referring to Pitt) is exceptionally well coached. Every play has been run off with snap and precision. The way they hand the ball around in the backfield is hard to beat. That varied attack would keep anyone guessing. And it certainly doesn't want for power."

(Much of Warner's comment on Pitt's defense is omitted because it was studded with criticism of State's offense.)

"Welch certainly does everything well. I wish I had him on my team. That was Welch that just got away there, wasn't it? I thought so. Roepke certainly is cool in getting off those passes.

"Who was that just piled through the line? Booth, huh? When he hits 'em, he hits 'em, doesn't he? I'm afraid my boys are going to be too light. Those light-colored uniforms make them (the Panthers) look smaller than they are.

"Pitt's line is wearing State's down (late in the third period). The backs are walking through holes now. Roepke certainly would be a good passer if he had anyone to pass to. Sure he's throwing it on the ground. What can you do when Pitt has every man covered?

"This reminds me of the good old days. State's just about as good as they used to be."

SPORT LENS

ticular flash. It would be difficult to find a more earnest, more alert halfback. He always did his share in every play when he ran interference or when he ran with the ball. Welch was super-power. Of handsome build, compact—like Cuyler as to build—and full of grease. He was always hard to hold once under way.

I DON'T remember of that team fumbling in a major game and I can't remember after any fumble when the Panthers did not recover the ball. The tackling was sure and terrific. There was precision in every play. This team was groomed by the methodical, capable and thorough Jock Sutherland, who is of the school of few plays, but all good. The team had the assistance of Charley Bowser, a heroic center once, who lent noble aid to Sutherland.

It was not until the gallant stand against Nebraska that Pittsburghers realized that here was a truly great team. The impression, of course, was strengthened by the finale of the season which saw State, given much mention by the Eastern press as a fine team, battered around as if it were a class B team.

THE team wore white headgear and bright yellow sweaters, offering a romantic appearance as they trotted onto the field to warm up. The line in size was not elephantine as one noticed them running out, almost prancing, to their positions, but they were all strong boys, mostly veterans who knew what it was all about.

Welch got the "big play," and deservedly, but it was Hagan who made this observer cry out once or twice just like a Pitt under-graduate, with his dance money up on the game. He is a white-haired kid, who dashes, flops, and squirms like an excited seal. It was against Nebraska when he ran, oh, for so long, 60 or 70 yards for a touchdown, that Hagan had me standing up waving him on. It was the only time I had ever done that.

THE history is not complete without mention of a noted Pitt man, whose name is Karl Davis. In a fashion that was his team—that 1927 team. He had known of most of those boys in their prep schools and he sort of nursed them along after they joined Pitt. He knew their moles and freckles. He was graduate manager when this team was born. Say what you will, Karl Davis looms as perhaps the most significant man in Pitt football. He, too, played a position on the 1927 champions. I hope Pitt historians in years to come will read this to learn of proper credit.

WELCH PAVES WAY FOR TALLY

Gibby Welch on his 23-yard run to the seven-yard line shortly after the start of the second period. This run paved the way for Pitt's first touchdown, by Booth, which came four plays later. Gibby dashed around right end on his gallop.

PANTHERS' FIRST TOUCHDOWN

Dick Booth goes through the line for the first touchdown of the game, early in the second period, after the Panthers had scored on a safety. Booth also scored a touchdown in the fourth quarter, kicked four touchdown goals and failed in two tries for placement field goals.

HAGAN ON LONG DASH

Picture shows Whitey Hagan, Welch's great running mate at halfback, on one of his several spectacular dashes. He raced 31 yards to the State 21-yard line, placing the ball in position for Booth to make his second try for a field goal. But for Welch's feature work, Hagan would have been the outstanding star of the battle.

Exclusive picture of the first scoring play, the safety made by Joe Miller, former Wilkinsburg High star, when he tried to run around left end and was tackled behind the goal line by Hagan in the second period. Pictures are superimposed on a panorama view of the crowded Pitt bowl.

"THEY'LL LIKELY BEAT US," WARNER SAYS OF PITT

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

ANY lingering doubt as to the superiority of this year's Pitt eleven over all local, sectional or regional rivals, or as to its right to the so-called championship of the East, after W. & J.'s tie game with West Virginia, must have been swept away yesterday by the crushing 30-to-0 defeat handed to Penn State by the Panthers in the closing game of the regular schedule.

That Pitt held a slight edge in playing strength had been apparent before the meeting, but even at that Penn State had loomed up as a most dangerous rival, and the most sanguine Pitt supporters had not looked for anything like a score of 30 points against the team that previously beat Penn and Syracuse and buried Lafayette under a pile of 39 points.

THE only explanation is that even those who saw exceptional qualities in the Pitt eleven of 1927 did not realize the full strength of the Panthers.

They saw it yesterday when the backfield was in working shape for the first time in several weeks. With Welch, Hagan, Booth and Fisher fighting behind one of the best lines in the United States, a line whose brilliant work has stood out in every game played by the Blue and Gold this season, Penn State did not have any more chance than a high school eleven as far as the possibility of victory was concerned.

Penn State never is disgraced in defeat, for she is a worthy foe and always is found fighting to the last ditch when she has to go down, but the efforts of the visitors yesterday were feeble in comparison with the whirlwind game put up by the locals.

IT WOULD be difficult to single out a particular star on the winning side. Welch, of course, shone with his usual brilliance, but practically abreast of him were Jimmy Hagan, who has looked just as good as Welch in recent games, and Dick Booth. Andy Guarino was picking passes out of air in his customary uncanny manner, Andy Cutler did the passing at center as accurately as ever, and Kern, Montgomery, Roberts, Donchess and every one else who got a chance to play, did his part in a manner that left nothing to be desired.

The work of the line stood out, as usual. Charging low, in striking contrast to Penn State's high line play—a Blue and White characteristic by the way, that is looked upon as one of the reasons that make it possible for Pitt to beat the Centre countians

ARMY AND NAVY AWAIT BATTLE

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—(AP.)—Hosts of the Army and Navy mobilized today in preparation for the annual gridiron battle at the Polo Grounds tomorrow which will be witnessed by a throng upwards of 75,000.

The fighting forces from West Point have gone through a season marred only by a defeat from Yale and therefore are favorites to vanquish their naval foes who have suffered sharp reversals from Notre Dame and Michigan. Notre Dame was an Army victim.

Yet the Midshipmen refuse to accept previous performances as a criterion for this struggle and are hopeful of out-maneuvering the Cadets.

INVITATION IS SENT BY STANFORD U.

REWARD for conquest and ample balm for such painful wounds as Panther gridders have suffered in hours of battling against formidable foes was received at Pitt today in the form of an official invitation to the University of Pittsburgh to meet Leland Stanford University in the annual Tournament of Roses football game at Pasadena, Cal., on January 2, 1928.

Stanford, chosen as the west coast representative about a fortnight ago, collaborated with Tournament of Roses officials in selecting its Eastern foe, and it was from the Cardinals that the invitation was received. It previously had been announced that should Pitt defeat Penn State the invitation would go to the Panthers, and consequently the receipt of the bid occasioned no surprise. The official invitation was received by Elmer F. Blakeless, Pitt athletic director, shortly after noon. It reads as follows:

Director of Athletics E. F. Blakesless,
University of Pittsburgh,
Pittsburgh, Pa.

Stanford officially offers you invitation to meet her in football on January 2, 1928, at Pasadena. Please advise your answer as soon as possible and contract will follow.

A. B. MASTERS,
General Manager Board of Athletic Control, Stanford University.

Welch on All-Star Team

GIBBY WELCH, captain and halfback of the Pitt Panthers, no longer is a potential All-American—he IS an all-American. An all-American team announced today by the United Press news service, compiled after a poll of writers from coast to coast, includes Welch at a halfback position.

No Western Pennsylvania gridder other than Welch gained a place on either the first or second teams, but Roepke of Penn State and Amos of W. & J. received honorable mention. The United Press all-America team follows:

Player	College	Pos.
Custerbaun	Michigan	E.

SPEAKING of SPORTS

HARRY KECK
SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS EDITOR

A GOOD football team was made to look puerile by a great eleven as Pitt, with the vision of the coast trip for the Tournament of Roses game before it, crushed Penn State, 30-0, in the Pitt Stadium yesterday before 60,000 fans.

State appeared weak because it never had a chance to get started doing anything as Pitt monopolized possession of the ball as the great Pitt teams of the early Warner regime monopolized it. Only once did State get the ball into Pitt's territory, early in the fourth period, and then it lost it on a fumble on the 41-yard line. Meanwhile, Pitt piled up four touchdowns and the resultant goals, was halted on the [illegible]-yard line at the end of the first half, scored on a safety and tried for but missed two field goals.

THE Panthers outgained the Lions better than 5 to 1, the exact figures being 391 yards net against 76 yards, and 21 first downs against five. In the second period, State gained 10 yards and lost 11. In the first half it made only one first down. So long as the Pitt first team was on the field the visitors did not complete a forward pass out of seven attempted, and then it put through two in the fourth period for a total gain of 13 yards—and the Lions were supposed to have a good passing attack. Meanwhile, Pitt completed six out of 15 tries for a total gain of 46 yards. Pitt was penalized 35 yards against 20 for its opponent.

NEVER did two highly-touted players stand out in more striking contrast than the rival captains, Gibby Welch of Pitt and Johnny Roepke of State. Welch was all everybody said he was, a star of all-America caliber, while Roepke, who went great in the Turkey Day game here last year and has been a star for State this season, was a flat failure. On many plays, especially end runs, Roepke looked terrible. He simply couldn't get away. He was cool in his passing, but found no one loose to whom he could pass, and until replacements began to fill the Panther lineup he had to shoot wild.

WESTINGHOUSE BATTLES WILKINSBURG TOMORROW

Westinghouse will clash with Wilkinsburg High School on Graham Field tomorrow afternoon, ringing down the curtain in scholastic football for this season. When the whistle blows at 2:30 o'clock to set the boys in action it will mark the resuming of relations between the schools after a long 10-year break. The Silver Lakers, undefeated, will be looking toward the W. P. I. A. L. title while aiming at victory, while Wilkinsburg, beaten only by Greensburg, hopes to stop the City League team's rush in that direction.

J. Dundee Here on Dec. 12

JOE DUNDEE, world's welterweight champion, will meet the winner of the Young Saylor-Willis Harmon bout scheduled for next Monday night at the Motor Square ring. The titleholder originally was booked to box Saylor here on that date, but was unable to go through with the engagement at that time because of complications arising from the Ace Hudkins fiasco at Los Angeles recently. However, he will be able

PANTHERS, SUTHERLAND PRAISED BY POP

By CARL W. SHATTO.

"IT'S an exceptionally well-balanced team. The power is so well distributed that it's hard to realize their great strength. If they play as they are playing today they will give us plenty of trouble; yes, they probably will beat us."

And who is "us?" "Us" is Stanford University and the speaker is Glenn S. (Pop) Warner—speaking in a sort of monologue as he voiced his thoughts while watching Pitt's Golden Panthers claw the Penn State Lions into 30-0 defeat at the Stadium yesterday afternoon.

It was the good fortune of your correspondent to be seated next to the former Pitt and Carlisle coach at Pittsburgh's Thanksgiving Day grid classic. Warner, now head coach at Stanford, was here to scout Pitt, for on New Year's Day the Panthers are to be the opponents of Warner and Stanford in the usual Tournament of Roses game at Pasadena, Cal.

JOTS DOWN PLAYS.

And how Warner did scout Pitt! Every play of merit that Pitt worked in the first half was diagrammed, labeled and described on the front cover of Pop's program. In the second half, Warner turned to the back cover, and when the game was over every noteworthy move the Panthers made in the last two periods was mirrored there.

While Warner watched and wrote and drew he talked his own accompanyment. Pop was not speaking for publication, but speaking, rather, to himself, voicing the thoughts occasioned by the actions of 22 men on the field below. Warner's monologue was varied in that it included both the crescendo of praise and the guttural basso of criticism. For Pitt, though, Warner had nothing more than praise; the outbursts of criticism were heard only when the Lions gave indications of having all teeth and claws drawn.

While Warner took notes on the play of the Panthers your correspondent took notes on Pop's mono-

Carnegie Reaches Coast

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 25.—The Carnegie Tech football squad arrived here early this morning after the transcontinental trip from Pittsburgh and went through a limbering up session for their intersectional battle with the Oregon Aggies here tomorrow afternoon. The battle is scheduled to take place in the Multnomah Civic Stadium. During their stay in the city the Skibos will be quartered in the Multnomah Hotel.

The city is all worked up over the battle between the Skibos and Aggies tomorrow afternoon and indications point to a capacity crowd when the teams take the field. Between 35,000 and 40,000 is expected to attend the game.

The Skibos stopped off in Boise, Idaho, yesterday where they indulged in a long session to break up the monotony of the long trip from Pittsburgh. Every member of the Carnegie squad, however, was in great shape despite the long train ride.

There are many Tartan alumni residing in this section and the Skibos will have a large delegation of supporters for the game tomorrow. A large crowd of Carnegie graduates were at the station when the party pulled into the local depot this morning.

Following a workout late today, Coaches Steffen and Waddell will select the starting lineup for the clash with the Aggies. Trainer Burt Munhall has worked hard to get Cowan, star lineman, into shape for the contest, but is hardly likely that Cowan will see action tomorrow. Lovewell will likely fill his place in the lineup.

Syracuse, Penn, N. Y. U., Colgate Name Leaders

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—(INS.)—Four of the East's outstanding gridiron stars will lead their respective teams next season.

Al Lassman, giant tackle of New York University, was chosen to captain the Violet. Lassman was forced out of the lineup late this season because of a broken leg.

Paul Scull, drop-kicker and halfback, was picked as Penn's 1928 captain. Scull hails from Bala, Pa.

Quarterback Hal (Skinny) Bayyinger, of Akron, O., is the new Syracuse leader.

Bruce Dumont, of Upper Montclair, N. J., a linesman and one of the best punters in the country, was elected captain of the Colgate eleven.

BULLDOGS WIN

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Benny Friedman and his Cleveland Bulldogs scored their second straight win over a local pro eleven yesterday. Red Grange's Yankees proved the victims, 20 to 13, this time. Tim Mara's Giants had already fallen before Ben's Busters.

THROUGH the SPORT LENS by HAVEY BOYLE

HAVEY BOYLE

PITTSBURGHERS have seen the last of the 1927 Pitt Panthers. They didn't lost a game, meeting West Virginia, Carnegie Tech, Washington-Jeff, Nebraska, and Penn State as major foes. Nebraska offered the hardest opposition, looking like a sure winner in the first quarter with the score tied at seven, only to tumble before the great brilliance of a doughty Panther, hard pressed.

These Panthers had heard a great deal of Roepke, great State halfback, and worthy he was, too, but Roepke's team was outclassed so generally, that even he looked bad against the relentless Panthers who wound up a furious year of tackling with their greatest fury against State.

REMEMBER the lineup, for in any future discussion of Pitt football, or for that matter football as a general theme, the Panthers of 1927 are important. They were not so great as the 1916 team at Pitt, greatest possibly in the history of the sport, but they are the second best. There was not a weak spot in the 1927 lineup. Fisher and Edwards, the quarters, ran interference mainly for the great Welch, Hagan and Booth. Donchess, an end, made the varsity in his sophomore year. Guarino, the other end, could smear interference and catch passes in great style. The line, great Kern, Fox, Roberts, Cutler, Wasmuth and Salata, seldom broke ground. Kern was the best and they were all good. There was hardly a one who could not get down under a punt to get the unfortunate ball carrier. Usually two or three crashed into the unlucky receiver at once.

BOOTH at fullback could not only crack a line, but he ran a bull-like interference. Hagan was a par-

BURNS GARNERS GREAT WIN

By TOM BIRKS.

Eight thousand wild-eyed followers of the independent gridiron watched the greatest game of the year Thursday, when the New Kensington Burns eleminated McChesneytown from the Western Pennsylvania championship race by a 9 to 6 score at Parnassus High School field.

The most talked of game during the season is now a matter of history, and with all respects to the ability of the famous Latrobe aggregation that has not been stopped before this season, it has to be admitted that the best team won.

In fact there was no comparison between the teams. Never throughout the game were the McGinnis gridders anywhere near the Burns goal line, whereas on three occasions McChesneytown made some wonderful stands within the show of its own goal.

The only touchdown in the game resulted from some great work on the part of Doll, the Burns star. The former Case luminary dove the last five yards through the McChesneytown line for the only touchdown of the game.

The other points came from a field goal in the third period.

NOTRE DAME IS FAVORED TO DEFEAT TROJANS TOMORROW

Westerners Are Hopeful

By MARK KELLY,
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—Notre Dame is 7 to 5 in the betting over those Trojans of U. S. C. And there is plenty of money to back California's hopefuls right here in Chicago, where the Trojan record has so impressed the natives that they know as much about the team as the folks in Pomona,

And so keen is interest in the Saturday contest that Soldiers' Field is completely sold out and tickets in the hands of the speculators command fancy prices,

Notre Dame wound up practice yesterday. Coach Rockne says his men have snapped out of the lethargy into which they sloughed after the Army debacle and are now in proper fighting trim to give a full account of their stewardship.

Rockne makes no prediction but says that his team will be at its best for the year and that if U. S. C. wins it will be beating a very good football team that is pointed for this contest just as keenly as it pointed for Georgia Tech or Army or Minnesota. John Niemic, one of Rockne's dependable backfield aces will see action but is not in the best of trim due to injuries received in the game with Drake last week. The balance of the Irish eleven is fit, fancy and furious.

TROJANS GET DRILL

The Trojans worked out in a brief stop at Kansas City. That made four leg stretching workouts for the squad. Drury's bad eye is not healed as well as it might be and Scheving, the up and coming tackle, is limping, while Rocky Kemp, Drury's first understudy came to bat with an infected foot that keeps him out of workouts but still a contest possibility if needs require his services.

Rockne plans to start his first string line strength with his second string backfield functioning behind it. That means Niemic, Chevigny, Brady and Wynne, with Flanagan, Dahman, Riley and Collins ready to take over the reins. Rockne calls that first named outfit his "B" battery.

The other is the "A" outfit, yet few critics can be found who rate either combination as better than the other. If the "B" battery starts it will be the same outfit that took the field against Minnesota and scored a quick touchdown. Defensively the "B" battery is not so well regarded as the "A," but otherwise there isn't a whisker to split between them or a chin to furnish the whisker.

The Trojan starting lineup is about set and well known. Drury at quarter, with Edelson, Saunders and Thomas just as they started against Stanford and California. McCaskin and Tappan, Hibbs and Scheving, Heiser and Anthony and Barrager complete the starting corps.

PIRATES MAY SIGN NEW ICE STARS TODAY

Before the day is over one or more new men will be added to the Pirate hockey club. This was made known last night by President Horace Townsend, who is sparing no time and expense in his effort to rebuild his team and make it a contender for the championship this year.

The acquisition of Sammy Rothschild, bought from the Montreal Maroons, is expected to solve the center ice problem.

Cleghorn will shake up his lineup for tomorrow night's game at Duquesne Garden against the crack Toronto Maple Leafs. Rothschild will take Milks' place at the pivot, the latter going back to his old position on left wing.

NOTICE CARRICK ODDS

All Carrick Odds players are requested to report at the Ormsby Playground this evening for practice at 8 p. m. Carrick will play at McKeesport tomorrow, opposing the Olympics.

ARE YOU a "TOXIC"

60 at 40

Nothing is more tragic than to be old before your time. Yet thousands of men and women are branded as "old" in the prime of life simply as a result of a state of health. Living at the pace we do today we put too great a strain upon our vital organs, especially the liver. The liver becoming "limp" or sluggish, fails to cleanse the blood of the poisons formed in food waste. Then a toxic condition of the whole system with heart and blood vessels affected and premature old age. The liver occasionally needs a little help and there's nothing better for this, as doctors agree, than ox gall. Ox gall is a remarkable natural stimulant for the human liver, promoting its normal active functioning. Dioxol tablets are genuine ox gall in dainty and tasteless form, each tablet representing 10 drops of pure ox gall. To be sure of getting the genuine ox gall, be sure of getting Dioxol. They cost less than 2c each at good druggists, and a few make a wonderful difference.

BALKITE HOUR

Without the uncertainty of untried apparatus—And without any sacrifice in quality of reception

There are two ways you can own an AC receiver. One is to discard your present set and buy a new and untried receiver, using a new and untried type of tube, at a sacrifice of quality of reception.

The other way is to add Balkite Electric "AB" to your present set. Balkite Electric "AB" contains no batteries and supplies radio power from the light socket. It makes any standard set an electric receiver.

This method makes possible the use of standard type tubes, which give by far the clearest and truest reproduction. There is no difficulty in controlling volume. No noise, no AC hum. No crackling, no booming, no blasting. Instead the same high standard of reception to which you are accustomed.

By all means go to AC reception. Its convenience is the greatest radio improvement you could buy. But let your AC receiver be a standard radio set equipped with Balkite Electric "AB."

Camel

The cigarette that knows how to "be itself"

There is no "pose" about Camel. It's just a good honest cigarette—the best ever—and it doesn't try to be anything else.

If all cigarettes were as good as Camel you wouldn't hear anything about special treatments to make cigarettes good for the throat. Nothing takes the place of choice tobaccos.

Rockefeller Is Champion Waiter; Rich Men's Giving.

By B. C. FORBES

"IF we are not succeeding," said young John D. Rockefeller the other evening when I remarked to him that the public are beginning to realize that the Rockefeller fortune is being used with unsurpassed wisdom, "it is not because we are not trying hard to render some worthwhile service to the human race."

"The change in the public's attitude during the past 20 years towards your father must be very gratifying to him—as well as to you," I remarked and added: "I recall that a decade ago your father begged me never to write anything in the way of criticism or condemnation of those who indulged in bitter criticism or condemnation of him."

"That's exactly like father," said John D., Jr. "He never for a moment doubted that the public's attitude would change once they learned the whole truth. No man ever wasted less time or vitality on harboring or expressing resentment or hate or ill feeling of any kind. He has always been quite content to wait. He can outwait any man I have ever known. He has patience unlimited."

OUR long, wholly informal chat brought to mind the veritable revolution now under way in large-scale American philanthropy.

Not content with giving away millions during their own life, more and more of our very rich men are withdrawing either wholly or partly from active business in order to devote their time and talents to the intelligent administration of their money for unselfish, beneficent purposes.

The elder Rockefeller set something of an example in this direction, and his only son devotes a good deal more than half of his time to money-giving rather than to money-making. Carnegie withdrew wholly from business to revel in the joy he derived from giving away millions.

ONLY the other day William H. Luden, millionaire maker of the well-known cough drops, announced that he had disposed of his plant at Reading, Pa., in order to devote his whole time and fortune to the philanthropies which have interested him increasingly as his wealth increased. One condition of the sale was that his working force would not be disturbed. The educating of boys and youths has been one of his hobbies, and in this field he set an example which many well-to-do employers may feel disposed to follow: For years he has paid a bonus of $250 a year to his employes for each child they have kept at high school.

EARLY this year John Markle, for almost half-a-century, an outstanding leader in the anthracite coal industry, announced the formation of the John and Mary R. Markle Foundation, granted by the New York State Legislature one of the broadest charters for philanthropy ever drawn up, and having among its trustees J. P. Morgan, son of the original J. P., who was one of Mr. Markle's cronies. The purposes enumerated include: "The general good of mankind," education, vocational and technical schools, libraries, scientific and medical research, shelter and financial and medical assistance for the needy, etc. Says Mr. Markle:

"When you acquire money, you become trustee for your fellow men and should so use it."

Mr. Markle, too, has entirely given up business to spend the remainder of his life in administering his wealth for the benefit of others.

GEORGE EASTMAN several years ago relinquished the presidency of his gigantic business because, said he:

"If a man has wealth he has to make a choice, because there is the money heaping up. He can keep it together in a bunch, and then leave it for others to administer after he is dead. Or he can get it into action and have fun while he is still alive. I prefer getting it into action and adapting it to human needs."

JULIUS ROSENWALD, mail order pioneer, has long divided his life between business and philanthropic activities. Milton B. Hershey adopted a similar course years ago. A wealthy Wall street banker, George Blumenthal, retired two years ago to devote his time mainly to philanthropic work.

HAVE these men the right idea?

NEWS AND VIEWS

Car Loadings Decrease.

Loading of revenue freight for the week ended November 12 totaled 974,862 cars, a decrease of 43,980 cars from the preceding week and 132,027 from the corresponding period in 1926.

Seminole Output Higher.

For 24 hours ended 7 a. m. Wednesday, the Seminole area produced 432,134 barrels crude oil from 1,068 wells, as against 430,650 barrels Tuesday and a peak of 527,400 barrels on July 30.

Steel Activities Above 71 Per Cent.

United States Steel Corporation ingot production is now slightly above 71 per cent, as against a little over 70 per cent last week and about 81 per cent in the corresponding period last year.

Bank of Finland Cuts Rate.

The Bank of Finland has reduced its discount rate ½ of 1 per cent to 6 per cent.

Active Week in Metals.

Active trading took place in non-ferrous metals in the past week, with higher prices for copper, zinc and tin. Lead also was firmer, though quotably unchanged in the East, Engineering and Mining Journal reports. The minor metals closed the week substantially unchanged. An excellent business was done in domestic copper and the market advanced to the basis of 13.75 cents a pound, delivered in the East. Most of the trading occurred before the market moved up to this level. Wire drawers have been conspicuous among the buyers. The Exporter's price has been advanced to 14.05 cents, c. i. f. Sales for export in November have been exceptionally large, the aggregate, it is estimated, being about 60,000 tons so far this month.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—The cotton market opened firm today at an advance of 12 to 19 points, active months selling about 17 to 20 points net higher in early trading in response to relatively firm Liverpool cables and expectations that the notices issued against December contracts in the market here would be promptly stopped. Early estimates of the notices placed in circulation represented between 175,000 and 180,000 bales, but large spot interests were credited with buying December freely at about the recent discounts, compared with later deliveries and the near month liquidation was readily absorbed.

The firmness of Liverpool over the local holiday was attributed to continental and Bombay buying, combined with trade calling. Private cables also said there was a well sustained cloth demand, although many offers were impracticable.

The market subsequently eased off a few points and trading became quiet as the liquidation of December contracts subsided and January sold down from 19.86 to 19.76, under comparatively small offerings. At midday the market was quiet and steady at net advances of 15 to 19 points.

MARKET POOLS ACTIVE IN ADVANCE

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—(AP.)—Resumption of the upward price movement in today's stock market was again attended with some irregularity. Powerful financial pools were again active in a wide assortment of public utility, merchandising, chemical, motor and shipping shares, early gains running from 1 to 5 points.

Bear traders continued to seek out weak spots, but they failed to make much headway. Otis Steel prior preferred, which scored a sensational gain of more than 20 points last week, lost nearly half its gain, and Adams Express crumbled 7 points, but the early losses in other targets of short sellers were held to a point or two.

Commodity markets were mixed, cotton advancing about 75 cents to $1 a bale, while meat prices turned reactionary. Sterling exchange advanced to a new high level since 1914.

New peak prices for the year, or longer, were registered in the stock market by nearly a score issues, including Brooklyn Edison, Detroit Edison, Congoleum, International Paper, Bloomingdale Brothers, Corn Products common and preferred and Vanadium Steel.

U. S. Steel common and General Motors were again under pressure, selling off about 2 points in the early trading, but recovering half of their loss by early afternoon.

Rails were inclined to heaviness, although a fair demand developed for some of the coalers after midday.

Local Fuel Leader At New High

Lone Star Gas started off with a rush on the opening of business on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today, rushing up more than a point on a heavy turnover and holding firmly at the higher level during the quiet periods separating the various spurts. This issue dominated the market all day although there was a strong demand for certain miscellaneous stocks, Blaw Knox Steel particularly.

As yet the expected official announcement as to what directors have in store for Lone Star stockholders has not been made. It was reported several days ago that officials were in the East conferring with Standard Oil of New York interests, but no information regarding discussions at the meetings was available. Rumors have been current for many weeks that Standard of New York was desirous of adding the Lone Star properties to its extensive southwestern holdings.

Aside from the activity in Lone Star, the fuel list was dull and uninteresting. A few transactions were recorded in Arkansas Gas around previous quotations and a small lot of Waverly Oil, class A, stock sold at 22½, unchanged from the last posted price. Miscellaneous shares continued dull throughout the afternoon.

BUGS BAER Says

WHILE the rest of the world is figuring out its Thanksgiving measurements with appropriate cranberry dimensions we must hand China credit for its rough diplomacy.

Ching-Wu is leading the northern laundry dictators toward the south while Ching-Yen is marching north. This is one war which could be stopped by a good traffic cop.

The whole affair in China seems to be one darned Ching after another. It might have stopped long ago if some Hong Kong hadn't referred to Ching-Wu as the iron chancellor of the Orient.

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER.

Ching-Wu ordered the pacifist peppered with iron bird eggs at sunrise. He thought the expression iron chancellor was a slur on his previous method of earning a living.

There are many Chings to be considered in China before peace reaches the stage of league activities.

Another lump of trouble was hashed up when Wellington Coo was billed as the Ironing Duke. Chinese students have learned how to handle propaganda and are going to carry the war to a glossy finish.

The Celestial grouches can teach Europe and America one lesson.

China knows how to keep a war private. This is strictly a Ching affair and if you haven't been annoyed with pins in your dress shirts lately you know it because the Chings need all the pins for their war maps. We hope they keep on fighting.

There is no principle involved. The oblique glimmed warriors invented gunpowder twenty centuries ago and the novelty has just become a fad. When the Chings are tired of fighting each other they will probably show some European hospitality and call their neighbors in.

This is not an invitation affair yet. When the Chings realize that no war can be successful without allies for bickering purposes they will undoubtedly send out invites to the United States and Chicago.

We hope to be present at the usual peace conference in Switzerland during the winter sport season. The hellishness of war stretches its climax at a Swiss conference when the sparks from a diplomat's beard ignite the brittle opinions of the neutral envoys.

We will not find out what the shooting was for because we didn't discover the reasons when the clips spoke English in 1918. This time they will be gulping Chinese which is one tough language to breath.

At the present time it looks as if Ching and Ching refuse to allow foreign capital to be used in China for anything but ransoms and there isn't a chance to get the mandarins out of the joss houses by Christmas.

Is This All?

Did Perseus Only Kill THIS Thing?

ANDROMEDA TODAY—QUITE SAFE.

Everybody knows the story of Perseus and beautiful Andromeda.

She was captured by the dragon. Brave Perseus slew the monster and freed her.

When you look at the only dragon we have in these days, in the picture with the lovely Mrs. Burden, American lady and modern Andromeda, kneeling beside it, you lose part of your high opinion of old Perseus.

If THIS is all he killed, he doesn't seem so much of a hero.

This particular dragon, called the "Dragon of Komodo," is big and powerful enough to kill a lady, if he could take a lady by surprise, as he would gladly do. But a small bullet convinces him that ladies are not his diet.

The "Komodo" dragon, named for an East Indian island on which it is found, is in reality a gigantic lizard.

They may have had bigger and better dragons in the days of Perseus. But it is quite likely that some animal of this kind, combined with stories about the savage fighting of the crocodile and the lashing of its rough tail, gave rise to the myth about the dragon.

NOT A BAD "DRAGON."

This shows the head of a lizard, whose scientific name is "Varanus Komodoensis," from that same island of Komodo. It is a "close-up" sufficiently savage to "frighten poor Andromeda, if he had got hold of her, and to make a Perseus necessary."

By the way, those that do not object to the theory of evolution will observe with interest that our modern snakes are supposed to have come, THROUGH EVOLUTION, from the group of lizards to which this monster belongs. You will notice that his tongue is forked like that of a snake, and from lizards the snake got his forked tongue, with which, by the way, he deceived our grandmother Eve, causing her so much trouble and establishing the ready-made clothing business.

Can't Muffle Dry Issue

Senator Walsh of Montana, who was chairman of the Democratic National Convention at Madison Square Garden and therefore knows something of conventions, says the wet and dry issue must be muffled during the next campaign. He claims the Democrats can win if this vexing problem can be sidetracked.

But muffling the wet and dry issue cannot be done. It is uppermost in the minds of 90 per cent of the voters even though they do not admit it. No matter what other issues are brought up and advertised, the wet and dry issue will be the real one.

As to muffling, many voters think it was muffled too much when it was enacted into a law. Too much muffling in a free country is not always so good.

Installment Buying Safe

One interesting result of Prof. Seligman's survey of installment selling is the knowledge that our retail turnover last year was thirty-eight thousand million dollars, only 12 per cent of it on the deferred payment plan.

Bringing the figures down to a comprehensible size, that means an average spending of $1,310 per family, $157 of it on installments.

Taking a 12 per cent chance on the future in a country as prosperous as America is really not much of a hazard.

Men Who Are Really Great .·. .·. .·.

By DR. FRANK CRANE

DR. BUTLER of Columbia University declared a while ago that there were no great men left in the world.

Of course there are plenty of famous men. Many movie stars are famous and there are other front-page notables.

"Fame is not equivalent to greatness," says Dr. Emil Ludwig. "Were this not so Chaplin would be much greater than Bergson."

There are men, however, who, according to Mr. Ludwig, are entitled to be called great and more so than Alexander, Caesar or Napoleon.

Judging by the character of what he did, solely, Lindbergh certainly has a right to this title.

Others adduced by Dr. Ludwig are George Bernard Shaw, among the literari, and Masaryk, of Czecho-Slovakia, who "created a people."

Those who he maintains are great in practical science are probably little known in this country, and include the German, Nernst, the Swede, Arrhenius, the Dane, Bohr, and the German, Plank.

Madame Curie of Paris belongs to the list of really great ones.

He also maintains "Nansen, Shackleton, Marconi and the Wright Brothers should be named."

Of Freud, he says: "Psychology possesses a master who is a personality, Sigmund Freud, the Austrian. Though I am averse to his teachings, I recognize wherever I go the decisive influence of his ingenious theories."

Einstein, the German, however, he ranks higher than Freud, and says that he has given science a shock such as it had scarcely received in three centuries.

He ranks Edison very high and says that just as all musicians of the Baroque Period were swallowed up by Johann Sebastian Bach, so Edison swallows up all his pupils.

As a sample of really great men, he adduced most especially the greatest theorist and the greatest practical genius of our day, the German and the American, Einstein and Edison.

Garrett P Serviss Says:

France and Her Great Men

FRANCE has this fall been celebrating the three-hundredth anniversary of the birth of her greatest preacher, Bossuet. His eloquence was so great that one can feel it thrilling through the printed pages of his wonderful "Funeral Orations." They are almost the only things of that kind that can be read with satisfaction by those who, when reading, seek only the pleasure afforded by literary excellence. When Bossuet preached at the funerals of kings, princes, queens, great generals and statesmen, he dared to say whatever his fervent religious faith and vivid imagination dictated, and the proudest representatives of royalty and nobility that Europe has known bowed before his words.

"He who reigns in the heavens and from whom spring all empires, to whom only belong glory, majesty and independence, is also alone in giving law to kings, and likewise, when it pleaseth Him, teaching them great and terrible lessons. Whether He lifts up their thrones, or abases them, whether He communicates his power to princes or withdraws it and leaves them in their own frailty, alike He teaches them their duties in a manner sovereign and worthy of Him. In giving them power He commends them to use it as He Himself does, for the good of the world, and He shows them, in withdrawing it, that all their majesty is only borrowed, and that though they be seated on thrones they are not the less under His hand and subject to His supreme authority."

Those words he pronounced in the presence of the proud Louis the Fourteenth and his obsequious court, when Queen Henrietta Maria, widow of the beheaded king of England, Charles I, died in exile in France; and king, cardinal, duc, "talon rouge," "bas bleu," mocking courtier and frail beauty, all listened with bowed heads and even with bowed hearts.

Bossuet was ignorant of science, but he knew the human soul. His "Universay History" has no historic value, but the true history of man's aspirations, fears, hopes, strength, weaknesses, needs, he knew as few have ever done, and these things constituted the gamut of his eloquence, which resounds today, in the distance of time, like a great organ played by a master of the music of souls.

France neglects no centenaries of her great men. She commemorates the orators, the poets, the scientists, the educators, the artists, as well as the politicians, and in so doing she demonstrates the profundity of her civilization. Perhaps we demonstrate the shallowness of ours by overlooking these essentials. Has anybody thought of a countrywide commemoration of the birth of, say, Henry Ward Beecher, whose gift of eloquence may have paralleled that of Boussuet; or of Longfellow, who sung the poetry of American life; or of Emerson, who disclosed its deeper tones; or of Franklin, who was as great a practical philosopher as ancient Greece ever produced?

That a country which has but just escaped from the supreme peril of national extinction, which has been hamstrung in a merciless war, which has been slandered and forsaken by its gasping allies, and left to struggle to its feet as best it may, unaided and alone, should still retain so much love of human excellence and nobility as is revealed in these disinterested tributes to leaders of thought and action in the far off but not forgotten past, is a lesson that we, in particular, ought to study humbly in the midst of our immense material prosperity.

Keep Moving Ahead

WHY is it that you cannot keep interested in your business unless someone is trying to take it away from you?

You seem to depend upon opposition to furnish incentive.

There must be a sort of fighting spirit which has to be roused before you can do your best work.

Lots of people are that way. Because they are so slow to wake up to conditions and changing circumstances they get pretty nearly on the rocks before they see a need for attention to their work.

Haven't you sufficient imagination, originality and aggressiveness to want to make a success anyway?

Isn't it sufficient to have the material you count as assets and know that it rests with you to double or treble the finest results of your best years?

Why must you wait for the thunder snatcher to get you started in stirring up a little thunder of your own?

Tales That Are Told

Wastrels

THE new and energetic vicar was determined to shake up the parish. In particular he was resolved to tackle a certain baronet's wife who, though she might have been a power for good in the district, preferred auction bridge to deeds of piety and charity.

He called upon her and said:—

"Doubtless, Lady Blank, you have observed the immense amount of time that is wasted in playing bridge."

Lady Blank agreed heartily.

"You're right," she said. "Some people take years to shuffle and deal, don't they?"

Simple

MRS. SUBBUBS, who was absorbed in a romance of the seventeenth century, suddenly looked up at her husband.

"George," she remarked, "listen to this: 'By my halidom,' exclaimed Sir Percival, 'it is past the hour of 12!' Now, what is halidom, George?"

"What do you suppose it is?" he responded. "Doesn't the context tell you? Sir What's-his-name said it was past 12 by his halidom, didn't he? Well, I should have thought anybody could have seen that halidom was the make of his watch, just as I call mine an Ingersoll."

The Teaching of History

THE recent mess in Chicago called people's attention to the teaching of history. The study of history is as important as it is fascinating to human intelligence. How should it be taught?

The teaching of history in our public schools is, in a great measure, a waste of time, if you judge by its results. Most of our adult population are graduates of public school. What do most of us know about history?

We have a vague smattering of dates, distorted facts, names and picturesque incidents. What we lack is a knowledge of the sequence of events that led up to the present time and their relation to one another. Which is the only reason for studying history.

There is no earthly value in knowing that Caesar crossed the Rubicon unless you know why he crossed it and how it changed the history of Rome.

Can worth-while history be taught to children? A knowledge of historical dates and battles and kings and queens is not worth while. You can get those details out of any almanac.

Does the average school teacher possess a knowledge of the true significance of history? If not, why let them teach it?

When Henry Ford, on the witness stand, declared that "history is the bunk," he really voiced the belief of millions of the common people. Most history that is known by the masses of people really IS bunk.

To teach what is called "the rudiments" of history in order to make school children patriotic is a crime against intelligence. These "rudiments" are invariably misleading and patriotism based on misinformation is not worth while. There are other and better ways of inspiring patriotism than by distorting facts or giving unsatisfactory explanations.

The study of history should be pursued exactly as a physician studies the structure and the action of the human body. What use would you have for a physician who looked with contempt upon the typhoid bacillus and refused to study it?

There are very few of us who understand the present situation of Jugo-Slavia, of Hungary or of Peru. Yet those situations are a stage in the development of the world's history. And only God knows when any one of those situations may bring about a crisis that will affect the destiny of our own country.

He who proclaims that the history of his own country is all that he cares to know, is unfit to study history. This globe, rushing furiously through space, is peopled with billions of human beings who are animated by the same desires, the same longings, the same ambitions. History is the science which attempts to tell you how these beings became divided, what they did, why they did it and what they will probably do in the future.

He who ignores the history of other nations cannot possibly understand clearly the history of his own land. To grasp the history of all civilized nations is a tremendous job. How should the public schools approach it?

Digging up the Pharaohs is a work the ancient Egyptians would not have approved. Their favorite occupation was burying Pharaohs.

New York Day by Day

by O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Thoughts while strolling: The gray-haired clerks at Tiffany's. Whatever became of bonnets with jet tips? Dean Cornwell, the artist. Circusey display windows. The new knee bracelets. Lucius Boomer, the hotel man, and his pince nez. Walter Winchell, the tabloid tattler, swings by with a rush.

The sun setting in red. Katharine Cornell and her quick, quivering manner. The shadowy, rich colored lounges of the exclusive clubs. Sad-eyed beggars holding faded flowers. Night diggers ready to begin their ringing clamor. Thick gasoline odors.

Those slick Cuban Brummels. Always with blondes. A window of Childe Hassam pictures. Military-looking strollers—probably movie ushers. The Waldorf windows—where Oshkosh reviews New York in pleasant profile. Curb hansoms with drooping horses. Cabbies with red button noses.

The dead evening calm that comes to the Thirty-fourth street shopping center. Window trimmers begin to fashion tomorrow's fancies. Herald Square "stolen fur" salesmen. Old newspaper sellers stamping about in the chill. Sixth avenue's row of cheap restaurants—where patrons read, eat and then smoke pipes outside.

Northward the million dollar movie kingdom. The vulgar exploitations of the mob in other cheap pleasures. Sidewalks overflowing to gutters. The jazzy skyline. And all the first-class plays are shunted into side streets. Ed Wynn hops from his automobile. J. Wade McGrath, the hotel man.

Pert pick-ups looking for welcoming glances. The sickly yellow glare—like the complexion of a jaundiced wanton. A roaming drunk singing "Stackpoles." And stumbles heedlessly through the motor press. Racing wagons thump early morning editions along the corners.

An organ grinder's monkey languidly turning somersaults. Then lifts his red cap. Paunchy, slack-trousered scene shifters and musicians in dinner coats. Glaring billboards urging a nicotine-stained nation to choke on more cigarets.

On Houston street is a shop dealing exclusively in big clothes for big men. The proprietor sells oversized garments all over America. He follows snappy styles. If a 300-pounder wants a pair of pajamas or suspenders or a size 20 collar he can acquire them immediately. The proprietor has never advertised. He depends upon porcine patrons spreading the word.

And the latest in quick photography is a wrinkle smacking of genius. It is on Sixth avenue where one may drop in and be photographed familiarly with an arm around wax dummies of such notables as Calvin Coolidge, Lindbergh, Babe Ruth or Gene Tunney. Thus visiting lodgemen may send back their likenesses to the boys around the Smoke Shop, reading: "Me and Cal," etc. The place is crowded at all hours and not, it might be added, always by out-of-towners.

On side streets running off Fifth avenue at dusk are found shabby old women crouching on doorsteps holding out a few withered flowers. "A flower for your buttonhole, Mister?" they croon and few pass without dropping a coin. If they carried well-stocked trays of fresh flowers their sales would be slight. They have sensed a paying bit of beggar psychology.

A policeman tells of a back-in-the-brush sheriff visiting a police supply store with a well-dressed prisoner to be taken west. The handcuffs he wore were rusty and bunglesome. He dreaded the long trip in such bracelets and desired something natty. He was permitted to select a shiny new pair for which he paid $12—and after they were attached he admired them before a mirror. That is about the dernier cri (French without a struggle) in vanity.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Forget

NOT only do the thoughts you hold assuage your care and fret, but often of a worth untold are things you can forget. Though it is wise to keep in mind the pleasures of the day, to treasure every greeting kind, each friendly smile and gay, it is as vital to let go of trouble and of care, to turn away from thoughts of woe that you, like all, must bear. There is no pang more cruel known than that of vain regret; weak folly dwells on chances flown which strength would once forget. The past has never once returned, all earth's long ages through, however much men may have yearned to shape their course anew. But with the dawning of today new fields await you yet; then put old weakness away, be wise, be strong—forget!
